BALK ATTACK ON EVELYN

Delmas Blocks Jerome's First Attempt to Introduce Testimony Derogatory to the Character of Thaw's Wife—Objection Sustained by the Court After Very Lengthy Argument.

BY BOSTON AMERICAN LEASED WIRE.

NEW YORK, March 11.—The beginning of the State's rebuttal testimony at the resumption of the trial of Harry K. Thaw for the slaying of Stanford White, to-day, was marked by a violent word clash between District Attorney Jerome and Lawyer Delmas, while the first witness, Lawyer Frederick W. Longfellow, was on the stand.

The District Attorney started in with the intention of attacking the story told on the stand by Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, the beautiful young wife of the prisoner. Delmas objected. He recalled the statement of the District Attorney, himself, that he could not, by law, contradict the truth of the story Evelyn told.

Court Sustains Delmas.

After a long argument, during which the case of Ethel Thomas, who was said to have prepared a suit for damages against Thaw, which was in the hands of Lawyer "Abe" Hummel, was recalled, Justice Fitzgerald sustained the objection of the defendant's counsel. Jerome was defeated in his first move to break the force of the defendant's case.

Either Evelyn Nesbit Thaw or Miss May McKenzie, her actress friend, of Boston, was expected to be the first witness to-day, and as a result a very large crowd gathered at the court house and jammed the corridors. When the trial was resumed the trial room was packed.

Lawyer Longfellow's firm represented Thaw in 1902, when the suit of the Thomas girl was contemplated. It was claimed that Thaw had beaten this girl.

This story was told to Evelyn Nesbit, she testified, by Lawyer Hummel when she went to his office at the request of Stanford White. It served to turn her for a time against Thaw.

WOULD PROVE THAW'S SANITY.

Jerome wanted to get in the story about Ethel Thomas, but Delmas opposed it, and the Court again ruled in favor of the defendant. Thaw apparently wrote Lawyer Longfellow some letters about the time the Ethel Thomas case was under consideration. Delmas objected because it happened before 1903. Jerome did not like it. He said:

"My theory is this: 'They put in such testimony as they saw fit. They began when he was a little child and had a relay of nurses at night. Am I to be precluded from showing acts prior to June, 1903, when they are allowed such liberties? I submit that I be allowed to show everything to indicate that he is sane when they are permitted to relate the facts I have referred to for the purpose of establishing his insanity."

Justice Fitzgerald ruled that the District Attorney should fix the date before introducing the letters.

LONGFELLOW FIRST REBUTTAL WITNESS

NEW YORK, March 11.—At the resumption of the Thaw trial to-day District Attorney Jerome began his rebuttal by calling Frederick W. Longfellow, one time attorney for Harry K. Thaw.

Q.—When Miss Nesbit, as she then was, came to New York in 1903, at what time did she arrive? A.—I do not remember exactly. To the best of my recollection the ship docked in the afternoon.

Jerome asked the defence whether it would not concede that it was at 3:30 p. m.

"That," said Jerome, "is the nearest I can arrive at it from the records of the steamship company."

The defence refused to concede this.

Q.—Did Miss Nesbit give you a letter? A.—I do not know.

Jerome got out the photographic copies of the letters in evidence to have him identify the one in question.

After looking over a bunch of copies, Longfellow said that exhibit B might be the letter Miss Nesbit had given him. However, he said, he could not be certain of it.

Q.—Does not the subject matter of this letter, of which this is a copy (showing a typewritten copy), refresh your memory as to letter B? A.—(After carefully reading it over)—Nothing in the letter refreshes my memory.

Delmas Quick to Object.

Q.—For how long a period, prior to June 25, had you been acting as attorney for Harry K. Thaw? A.—Since about 1902.

Q.—You were counsel for Harry Thaw in the suit of Ethel Thomas?

Delmas objected and was overruled.

"My firm was," replied the lawyer witness. "The firm of Delafield & Longfellow."

Q.—Were the papers in that suit served on the defendant?

Objected by Delmas.

Fight Blaze in Hold of Leyland Steamer

FIRE ON LINER DEVONIAN

Careless Deckhand Blamed For Flames That Threatened Destruction of Vessel.

Match Dropped in Hay Loaded on on Freighter Starts Dangerous Blaze.

The Boston Fire Department's land and water apparatus was rushed to pier No. 43, Charlestown docks, this noon for a dangerous fire which started in a cargo of hay which was being loaded into hold No. 4 in the 'tween decks of the Leyland line freighter Devonian and for a time threatened the destruction of the vessel.

By the time the department arrived a brisk blaze was going in the 200 tons of hay. In an adjoining hold was stored 36,000 bushels of corn and other grain, which was threatened by the fire. Several deck hands who fought the fire before the department arrived were driven back by clouds of smoke. Several were overcome.

The Devonian is scheduled to sail Thursday for Liverpool and was being loaded for the trip. While the hay was being put in hold 4, between the main and cattle decks, some careless deckhand, it is thought, threw a lighted match on the hay or allowed a spark from his pipe to blow in there.

When District Chief Pope arrived with the department he sent in a second alarm and telephoned for the fire boat. The fire boat lay alongside and put six hose streams on the fire, while the shore apparatus turned on eight more. The shore lines had to be laid along 700 feet of wharf room, causing some delay while couplings were being made. By 12 o'clock District Chief Pope said he thought the fire could be kept down without damage to the vessel.

POLICE SEARCH HUB FOR KIDNAPPED BOY

NOW THINK MISSING DELAWARE LAD HELD CAPTIVE BY MYSTERIOUS COUPLE.

Little four-year-old Horace Marvin, the son of Dr. W. Marvin of Bat Meadow Farm, near Dover, Del., who so mysteriously disappeared seven days ago and for whom the whole country is being ransacked, may be in Boston.

This, at least, is the belief of the Dover police who to-day telegraphed to the local police department to look everywhere in this city for the missing child.

A clue has come to the Delaware authorities and the anxious father in the shape of word from F. A. Barber of Mechanicsville, N. Y., who writes that on last Wednesday a man and a woman having with them a young boy, called at his home at 10 o'clock in the evening seeking lodgings, and declaring that they could not stop at one of the city hotels. He took them in and left the next morning on the 9:54 a. m. train for Boston.

Dr. Marvin at once decided to send this information to the Boston police department.

Superintendent Damate of the Pinkertons, who has charge of the case for the State, will to-day begin a thorough search of the Marvin farm. The Pinkertons are evidently ignoring the kidnapping theory and expect to find the child's body in the marsh. Miles Standish, brother-in-law to Dr. Marvin, has returned to New York city.

The heavy snow of yesterday will restrict the work of the Pinkertons to-day to the many rambling outhouses and the hay stacks. To-morrow the countryside folks will be called in as volunteers and every inch of the marshland gone over.

State Detective Hawkins and the Pinkertons are not placing much reliance upon the dispatches from Pittsburg and New York that the missing child has been seen in those cities. They believe that if the child has been kidnapped he is held by some one of the oystermen or fishermen who are numerous on the Delaware Bay shore.

FORMER POLICE INSPECTOR.

Former Police Inspector Joseph D. Bogan, who is dead at his home in Revere, was a Civil War veteran and a police official of ability. He was once a member of the State street "bank squad."

DROP FIGHT TO BAR CHRISTIAN SCIENTISTS

STATE BOARD OF REGISTRATION GIVES UP STRUGGLE AT STATE HOUSE.

The State Board of Registration in Medicine has backed down in its effort to have the Legislative Committee on Public Health advocate the passage of rigorous restrictive legislation upon the right to practice medicine in Massachusetts.

As a consequence, the Christian Scientists, the Osteopathies, Spiritualists and many other cults are to-day loud in their rejoicing.

When the fact came out that the board had really backed down and would not insist on drastic restrictive legislation 300 women Christian Scientists, who were at the hearing before the Committee on Health in the State House to-day broke out into unrestrained and unexpected applause. Spiritualists, who were out in force, also joined in the applause.

JURY FREES HATCH IN JAIL ESCAPE CHARGE

Charles R. Hatch, former officer at the Charles Street Jail, who has been on trial in the Superior Criminal Court on a charge of allowing George H. Gaskell, a prisoner, to escape in February, 1906, was to-day acquitted by the jury. The case went to the jury at 10:30 and a verdict was returned an hour later.

There were two counts in the complaint against Hatch, charging him with criminally and negligently allowing Gaskell to escape. In his charge Judge Brown told the jurors that they could not find Hatch guilty on both counts. He warned them that they were not trying the system at the Charles Street Jail but were trying the man.

This statement grew out of the testimony which showed startling laxity in the management of the jail, it having appeared that great liberties were allowed some prisoners, that jailers sold newspapers and that the system in general was very weak.

ZIONISTS DROP FEUD TO MOURN AT DOWIE BIER

Factions Will Unite in Great Public Tribute of City to Founder.

BODY ON VIEW THREE DAYS

CHICAGO, March 11.—The last tribute of Zion City to its founder will be accorded Thursday afternoon, when the remains of John Alexander Dowie will be given a great public funeral. An elaborate service will be held in Shiloh Tabernacle at 2 o'clock. The body will be interred in Lake Mound Cemetery, in the centre of Zion, beside his daughter, Esther, who died two years ago. Stores, factories and schools will be closed.

The tabernacle will offer a most impressive spectacle on Thursday. On the platform will be the leaders, both of the present administration and of the small band of "orthodox" believers in the doctrines of the Christian Catholic Apostolic Church, who have never wavered in their fealty to Dowie.

The full Zion choir of several hundred members, in their flowing white robes, will sing requiems. Leader Thomas will request all former members of the choir—who sang in it in the days of Dowie's glory—to join with the present members for the occasion. The funeral oration will be delivered by V. V. Barnes, present head of the Zion law department, who has always retained a personal veneration for Dr. Dowie, although he joined Voliva from motives of duty to the community as a whole.

The body of the dead leader, clad in a magnificent apostolic robe of white satin, embroidered with purple, gold and scarlet, will be removed from Shiloh House to the Tabernacle just before service begins. During to-morrow, Wednesday and part of Thursday the body will lie in state in the reception hall of Shiloh.

THUNDER IS GROUNDHOG'S ALARM CALL

Having made good on his Winter prophecy, B'rer Groundhog now holds himself snugly in his underground home waiting for the first thunder storm to signal "Spring is here."

The Boston public, which recklessly forecasts this, that and the other might as well be content with B'rer Groundhog and wait for the signal, too.

Six weeks ago, when the groundhog came out of the ground and took a wary glance around, the first thing he saw was his own shadow cast on the snow.

"I knew it, I knew it," said the groundhog, and back he popped into his hole, assured that there would be at least six more weeks of Winter.

Various scoffers who thought Winter was about over said: "Huh! Much the groundhog knows." So they left off their heavy clothes and contracted pneumonia and other things.

Meanwhile Winter howled cheerfully along. But the groundhog lay tight in his home, knowing he had at least six weeks more to snooze.

He has had his six weeks, and is getting more for good measure. Not again will the groundhog stir till he hears the rumble of the first thunder-storm and feels the rain water. Then he knows that the backbone of Winter is broken, and that he must be up and doing.

With the groundhog will come the snakes, real ones, not the imaginary fellows who crawl in the cold gray dawn of a "morning after." When the snakes bestir themselves with the groundhog we will know that Spring is among us. About that time watch for the reports of hoppergrasses out on Barre Plains. The Barre hoppergrass always runs by his signals and tumbles out as soon as the frost gets out of the ground, being an impatient bug. For this he usually gets Spring chills.

PROBE DEATH OF CAR VICTIM

Mystery surrounds the death of Gilbert G. Baker, who was found beneath the trucks of an outward-bound Medford-Winter Hill electric shortly before 1 o'clock yesterday morning, opposite Melvin street, on Broadway, Winter Hill, Somerville. The body was carried 100 yards and was mutilated, and identification was not made until relatives recognized the man's personal belongings. He was 33 years old, unmarried and lived at 7 Wesley street, Somerville. The police and railroad men, who are investigating, think Baker may have alighted from a car ahead and fallen on the tracks, to be hit by the car following.

HONOR ARCHBISHOP'S 41ST ANNIVERSARY

At 9 o'clock this morning in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross a solemn pontifical mass was celebrated by Archbishop O'Connell in honor of the forty-first anniversary of the consecration of Archbishop John J. Williams to the episcopacy and as spiritual head of the archdiocese of Boston.

Archbishop Williams, who is approaching his eighty-fourth birthday, was consecrated bishop of Boston, March 11, 1866.

MAKE PLAN TO SERVE PAPERS ON MRS. EDDY

HER LAWYERS TO DECIDE ON METHOD TODAY; SEEK AGREEMENT WITH SON'S COUNSEL.

An agreement will probably be made to-day by which Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, head of the Christian Science church, will receive the papers in the suit brought by her son, George W. Glover, to secure an accounting of her estate.

Mrs. Eddy and her lawyers, General F. S. Streeter of Concord and Samuel J. Elder of Boston, are to have a conference to-day at which the manner in which the papers may be served on Mrs. Eddy will be decided upon, and after this conference Messrs. Elder and Streeter will meet the Glover lawyers, ex-Senator Chandler and Messrs. Howe and Martin.

It is the wish of everybody connected with the case in a legal way that Mrs. Eddy may be saved any unnecessary annoyance in connection with the serving of the papers.

Want to Accommodate Mrs. Eddy.

"We wish to do everything possible to suit the convenience of Mrs. Eddy in this matter," said Mr. Martin at Concord this morning, "and we will consent to anything that will save her annoyance. All we desire is to have the papers served."

Probably the papers will be served on Mrs. Eddy some time late to-day.

Writs may be served on the Boston defendants, Alfred Farlow, Ira O. Kemp, Joseph Armstrong, William D. McCracken and William B. Johnson some time to-day.

Before they are served Mr. Farlow will have a conference with the lawyers representing the defence.

More of Mrs. Eddy's Letters.

Senator William E. Chandler, counsel for George W. Glover, has several more letters from Mrs. Eddy to her son in addition to those published yesterday which have caused a sensation among Christian Scientists. In one of these letters Mrs. Eddy addressed her son as an outcast and warned him not to enter her home. The letter reads in part:

Pleasant View, Concord, April 27, 1898.

"Dear Son—Yours of latest date came duly. That which you cannot, I understand, and will say I am reported as dying, wholly decrepit and useless. Now one of these reports is just as true as the others are. My life is as pure as that of the angels. God has lifted me up to my work and if it was not pure it would not bring forth good fruits. The Bible says the tree is known by its fruit.

"Now what of my circumstances? I name first my home, which of all places is the one in which to find peace and enjoyment. But my home is simply a house and a beautiful landscape. There is not one in it that I love only as I love everybody. I have no congeniality with my help inside of my house. They are no companions and scarcely fit to be my help.

'MOST DISAGREEABLE MAN.'

"I adopted a son, hoping he would take Mr. Frye's place as my bookkeeper and man-of-all-work that belongs to man. But my trial of him has proved another disappointment. His books could not be audited, they were so incorrect. Mr. Frye is the most disagreeable man that can be found.

"One thing is the severest wound of all, namely, the want of education among those nearest to me in kin. I would gladly give every dollar I possess to have one or two or three that are nearest to me on earth possess a thorough education. If you had been educated as I intended to have you, to-day you could and would be made President of the United States. Mary's letters to me are so misspelled that I blush to read them.

"You pronounce your words so wrongly, and then she spells them accordingly. I am even yet too proud to have you come among my society and, alas, mispronounce your words as you do; but for this I think I should be honored by your good manners, and I love you.

"With love to all,

"MARY BAKER EDDY."

FEAR WORLD'S RICHEST MAN HELD FOR RANSOM

PACIFIC COAST STIRRED AT MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE OF LUMBER KING.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., March 11.—The mysterious manner in which Frederick Weyerhauser, the richest man in the world, has disappeared, leads his friends to believe that he has been kidnapped.

The entire Pacific coast has been stirred up by the strange case. Weyerhauser was in San Francisco Friday and in the evening went to Santa Barbara. From there he boarded a train for this city and he has not been seen since. The leading hotels of the cities named have no record of his having been there. The Southern Pacific officials were appealed to and every conductor, brakeman and porter on the road has been ordered to keep a lookout for him. He is seventy-three years old, but exceedingly strong for his age.

His home is in Minneapolis, from which city he departed several weeks ago to inspect his vast forests.

It was not known until recently that Weyerhauser was possessed of such great wealth. The fact was discovered by the Cosmopolitan Magazine, from which his life story is gleaned. He was born at Neindersaulheim, Southern Germany in 1834. He came to America at the age of eighteen and settled at Erie, Pa. From there he went to Rock Island, Ill., and became a worker in a saw mill. Later he bought it.

A few years later he migrated to Wisconsin, where he investigated the lumber lands and saw in them the possibilities of great wealth. In 1872 he organized the Weyerhauser syndicate, which in a short time became interested in nearly every lumber camp in the Northwest.

Richer Than Oil King.

Weyerhauser's wealth and business grew with great bounds, until to-day he owns the greatest part of the lumber interests in the Mississippi Valley. His fortune is far greater than Rockefeller's.

DUKE IN N. Y. TO SEEK RICH MISS SHONTS

NEW YORK, March 11.—Albert de Luynes, Duc de Chaulnes, whose reported engagement to Miss Theodora Shonts, daughter of Theodore P. Shonts, was denied by both the young woman and her father, arrived in New York yesterday on La Savoie, accompanied by his friend, Baron D'Ager. He is at the Holland House. Fellow passengers received the impression that De Luynes was coming to America to press his suit for the hand of Miss Shonts.

For several years, it is said, the Duc de Chaulnes has been anxious to contract a marriage with some American girl to restore his broken fortunes, and he has been reported engaged to a number of wealthy young women.

On the last visit of the Misses Shonts to Europe the Duc de Chaulnes was very attentive to Miss Theodora.

RAGING SNOW STORM IS LAST GASP OF WINTER

The storm, which had Boston and the Atlantic coast in its grasp during the night and yesterday, was the last struggle of Winter, according to the weather men, who now predict fair skies and warming sunshine.

Less than two inches of snow fell in and about Boston, but it was enough to make the walks slippery and the walking bad. No serious results in the way of delayed cars or interrupted telephone or telegraph service followed.

The blizzard in New York was one of the worst of the Winter. The snow began to fall about 9 a. m. and continued all day, accompanied by a biting east wind. It was the thirteenth big storm of the Winter and nearly six inches of snow fell in eight hours.

MOTHERHOOD

The first requisite of a good mother is good health, and the experience of maternity should not be approached without careful physical preparation, as a woman who is in good physical condition transmits to her children the blessings of a good constitution.

Preparation for healthy maternity is accomplished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made from native roots and herbs, more successfully than by any other medicine because it gives tone and strength to the entire feminine organism, curing displacements, ulceration and inflammation, and the result is less suffering and more children healthy at birth. For more than thirty years has been the standby of American mothers in preparing for childbirth.

MRS. JAMES CHESTER

Note what Mrs. James Chester, of 427 W. 35th St., New York says in this letter:—Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—"I wish every expectant mother knew about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. A neighbor who had learned of its great value at this trying period of a woman's life urged me to try it and I did so, and I cannot say enough in regard to the good it did me. I recovered quickly and am in the best of health now."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is certainly a successful remedy for the peculiar weaknesses and ailments of women.

It has cured almost every form of Female Complaints, Dragging Sensations, Weak Back, Falling and Displacements, Inflammation, Ulcerations and Organic Diseases of Women and is invaluable in preparing for Childbirth and during the Change of Life.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to write Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free.

SWINDLER WHO TOOK POISON POSED AS POET

Preston, Who Cheated E. H. Hewitt Before Killing Self, Borrowed Verse to Woo Wife.

PREY OF RACE TIP GANG

NEW YORK, March 11.—Leonidas M. Preston, who killed himself last Thursday at the Hotel Cumberland, after swindling Edward R. Hewitt and others out of large sums of money, was himself the prey of racing "tip" swindlers. The story was told yesterday by Lawyer Joseph A. Shay, counsel for the widow of the suicide.

"In going over Preston's paper with the widow to-day," said Mr. Shaw, "we stumbled across evidence that the late head of the New York sales office of the Timken Roller Bearing Axle Company fell into the hands of a gang of cunning sharps, led by the brother of a jockey, who induced him to back a big racing information bureau. Fine offices were fitted up in the 'White Light' district at Preston's expense, and a corps of attendants was engaged to handle patrons at the office and at the track.

"But the gang swindled Preston. They ran the place as expensively as possible and directed all the patrons to pay for the tips at the track instead of at the office in this city. In this way the gang pocketed over $300 profit a week for a long period, which did not show on the books."

Tried to Commit Bigamy.

It also came to light yesterday that Preston tried to induce Miss Glennon—his second wife—to marry him while his first wife was alive. She said she first met him six years ago while she was a buyer in a Broadway department store. He told her he had been divorced from his wife twelve years.

Miss Glennon did not suspect his story, but she was in no hurry to marry, and she did not wed Preston for four years, until 1905. After Preston's suicide a merchant named Clark, an old Texas friend of the family, told Attorney Shay that Preston's wife did not die until three years ago, and that Preston lived with her to the end of her life in this city.

Preston posed to his second wife as a popular odes in the weekly magazines under the nom de plume of Sydney Carleton. He read a number of the Carleton poems to her and asked her if they weren't fine pieces of literary work.

May Have to Go to Work.

Mrs. Preston, who is a young and handsome woman, has not recovered from the shock of her husband's suicide. She said yesterday she was absolutely penniless, unless she could collect something on the lapsed insurance policies, through Hewitt's generosity. "If I do not," she said, "I am prepared to go back to work."

There was one dramatic incident connected with forger Preston's suicide. When he walked into the bathroom Thursday evening to take the fatal drug he left the door of the bathroom slightly open. Intensely concerned about his illness, his wife from the adjoining room followed him with her eyes. She saw Preston turn and gaze at her tenderly for some time. Then, when she looked away for an instant, he took the poison.

35 DRIVEN OUT BY LYNN FIRE

A five-story block on Market street, near the railroad tracks, Lynn, was badly damaged by fire early to-day. The building is owned by the Richard Drown heirs and occupied by Charles Clemence and the Brockway, Smith Corporation. The loss is over $25,000.

Thirty-five lodgers in the Workingmen's Home adjoining the burning building, were awakened when it was feared the fire might spread, but they were in no great danger.

A simple shake flavors the cake when you use Slade's Nutmeg. Grocers sell it.

HONOR WILLIAMS AT 41ST YEAR AS ARCHBISHOP

Pontifical Mass Marks Anniversary of Prelate's Elevation to See of Boston.

Clad in the purple robes of his office and seated on the archiepiscopal throne on the gospel side of the altar, Most Rev. John J. Williams, Archbishop of the New England archiepiscopate, to-day celebrated the forty-first anniversary of his elevation to the episcopacy in Holy Cross Cathedral. More than 500 persons were present at the solemn pontifical mass, in which Coadjutor Archbishop William O'Connell was the celebrant.

The assistant priest in the festival mass was Rev. John T. Mullen, rector of the Cathedral parish; deacon, Rev. James J. McCarthy; subdeacon, Rev. Thomas R. McCoy; master of ceremonies, Rev. Thomas J. McCormack, chancellor of the archdiocese.

Vested Choir at Mass.

A special musical programme was rendered in honor of the venerable archbishop. The procession was from Handel. Groles's Kyrie Eleison in B flat, Reisiger's Credo, the Fourth Offertory, "O Salutaris," old Italian; Hemel's Sanctus and Benedictus in B flat, and the recessional was from Beethoven's Fifth Symphony.

The special choir for the occasion consisted of Miss Elen V. McLoughlin, soprano; Miss Christina Galbraith, contralto; Martin Dunn, first tenor; Samuel Tuckerman, second tenor; Thomas C. Murphy, bass, and James T. Whalen, organist.

A boys' vested choir of seventy-five voices sang the responses.

Seated with Archbishop Williams on the throne were Rev. Dr. Francis X. Dolan and Rev. Dr. M. J. Splain. All of the priests who assisted in the celebration of the mass wore gold vestments.

Nearly 84 Years Old.

Archbishop Williams, who is approaching his eighty-fourth birthday, has spent more than sixty years in the service of the church. He was consecrated bishop of Boston on March 11, 1866.

Several nuns, teachers in parochial schools of the parish, were present with large delegations of their pupils.

Both of the archbishops were present at the celebration of the solemn high mass in the cathedral yesterday morning, and Archbishop O'Connell participated in a portion of the ceremonies which distinguished the period of forty hours' devotion of the Blessed Sacrament. The archbishop officiated at the ceremony of the benediction.

"NIGHTHAWK" CABMAN DIES IN MYSTERY

The police and the overseers of the poor are trying to locate relatives of John W. Rock, better known all over the South End as "Billy" Smith, the cabman, who had a stand for five years in front of Miah Murray's billiard rooms at Washington and Dover streets, but whose body now lies in City Hospital Morgue awaiting a claimant.

Just before he died "Smith" said feebly to a hospital attendant:

"My name isn't Billy Smith. I had a reason for using a false name. My real one is John W. Rock. My folks——"

Then the overworked heart collapsed, and the cabman fell back dead. The body was committed to the morgue. If it is not claimed within ten days it will be burried in the potter's field.

"Billy" Smith, to use the name by which he was known, was a familiar figure about upper Washington street. About five years ago he appeared in Boston, took out a cab license, choose a stand in front of Miah Murray's and did a thriving business as "nighthawk." He made a good living, but spent his money freely and never saved anything. None of the South End crowd knew where he roomed. A few days before being taken sick he went to the lodging house at No. 1,051 Washington street. From there he was taken to the hospital, expiring a few moments after he was placed on a cot. He was about thirty-two years old and unmarried so far as known.

ACTRESS ILL BY BARE FEET ACT

SPRINGFIELD, March 11.—Mary Mannering, who was taken ill in this city last Wednesday, suffered a relapse last night, rheumatism developing as a complication of acute grip.

Miss Mannering last week cancelled her engagements to March 18 when she is booked to open in Chicago.

Miss Mannering's illness is due to the fact that a part of the production of "Glorious Betsy" requires her to appear in her bare feet on the stage, the resulting cold developed into the grip.

CONTEST TWO-CENT FARE.

OMAHA, March 11.—In spite of the Legislative enactment of the two-cent-fare law, it is said that the railroads will contest its validity on confiscatory grounds.

AMERICAN TO PRINT LAWSON'S FAMOUS NOVEL

Thomas W. Lawson's great story, "Friday the Thirteenth," will begin in to-morrow's BOSTON AMERICAN. Newspapers have all manner of stories offered them for publication, but it is rarely that any paper has the privilege of putting before its readers one of the leading literary sensations of the year.

The BOSTON AMERICAN has paid a large sum of money for the exclusive right to print this thrilling romance in Boston. Although the book is scarcely off the press it is already one of the best selling novels of the year, and its popularity bids fair to make it one of the most celebrated romances of many years.

It is a fascinating tale of love and intrigue, interwoven with a masterful description of the battles for millions in the frenzy of a Wall Street panic.

"Friday the Thirteenth," begins in the BOSTON AMERICAN to-morrow, and will run serially until the complete story is printed.

FIRE IN FRICK'S N. Y. MANSION

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, March 11.—Henry C. Frick was entertaining a dinner party of ten at his home, at the corner of Fifty-first street and Fifth avenue, last night, when the old-fashioned fireplace on the third floor commenced to send flames up through the chimney. A passerby turned in an alarm, and a dozen firemen and police reserves hurried to the mansion.

The Pittsburg man seemed to think more of his costly rugs and cushions than of the fire that threatened his house.

"Be very careful," he admonished the firemen. "Don't bring up any more men than you have to to put the fire out."

"We'll bring up as many as we need," replied the deputy chief.

Then he caught up two beautiful silver pitchers off the side board, filled them with water and hurled it into the fireplace. With scant care for the carpets the firemen tramped up to the roof and poured salt and water down the chimney.

CRAIG WADSWORTH DENIES CHARGES OF EVELYN THAW

London Embassy Secretary Tells How He Befriended Young Woman's Mother When She Was Deserted in London in 1903. Facts Sent to Jerome.

LONDON, March 11.—An unofficial statement given to a correspondent of the Publishers' Press to-day at the American embassy, states what it is claimed are the real facts concerning Craig Wadsworth, second secretary of the embassy, and Mrs. Holman, mother of Evelyn Thaw, during her visit to London in 1903. Mrs. Holman, it is declared, was left without funds while Thaw and Evelyn Nesbit wen on their tour of Europe and Wadsworth assisted her.

The attack of the society newspaper, The Throne, on an unnamed secretary of one o fthe London embasseis, on Friday, asserting that the secretary had been involved in a great scandal, and consequently should resign, although apparently aimed directly at Mr. Wadsworth, will not be noticed officially. To-day's unofficial statement is expected to put Mr. Wadsworth right.

Said Thaw Abused Her.

When Harry Thaw, Evelyn Nesbit and her mother, who was then Mrs. Nesbit, were in London in 1903, the statement says, they saw much of Craig Wadsworth, whom they had previously known in New York.

One day, while at luncheon, Evelyn told Wadsworth that Thaw had been mistreating her. Immediately after this, however, Evelyn and Thaw went to Paris, leaving a note saying: "We will return in a fortnight." Mrs. Holman remained at Slaridge's, occupying an expensive suite, but without funds.

She was ill and appealed to Wadsworth for assistance. He sugested that she remain at Claridge's until Thaw's return, promising to see that she suffered no inconvenience in the meantime.

Thaw and Evelyn, however, did not return when they promised, and Wadsworth then suggested to Mrs. Holman that she apply to the American Society in London for assistance. This she did, and the society offered to send her to the United States on second class passage. She refused the offer, declining to sail unless she could have first class passage.

At the mother' request Wadsworth cabled to Mr. Holman, her fiance, who replied: "Do all you can for Mrs. Nesbit. Cable me full particulars." Soon afterward, however, Mrs. Holman found a friend in London with whom she returned to the United States. This, it is asserted, was Wadsworth's full connection with the case.

Statement Sent to Jerome.

When Wadsworth called upon Mrs. Holman after Thaw and Evelyn had gone to Paris, Mrs. Holman said to him: "What do you think that litt'e minx of a daughter told me? She said you had made improper proposals to her.

Wadsworth says this was not so, and that the opinion he formed was that Evelyn made this statement to prevent her mother from applying to Wadsworth for assistance, hoping that Stanford White would not learn what was going on through Wadsworth, who was a close personal friend of the dead architect.

The inference drawn at the American embassy regarding Evelyn's testimony on the stand that a secretary of the American embassy, whose name was kept quiet, "had sneaked into her mother's room," is that it was due to a desire to discredit him, as the only person except herself, Thaw and her mother who knew the cause of Mrs. Holman being destitute in London.

All the facts, as they are outlined in to-day's statement, have been forwarded to District Attorney Jerome in New York, and it is expected here they will be used in his rebuttal case against Thaw.

NESBITS DENOUNCE EVELYN'S MOTHER

Special to the Boston American.

PITTSBURG, Pa., March 11.—The grandmother and two aunts of Evelyn, wife of Harry K. Thaw, have repudiated Mrs. Charles J. Holman of this city, blaming her for all the trials and troubles of her daughter.

At Miles City, Mont., on March 4, there was held a family meeting which was attended by the aged mother of W. Scott Nesbit, who was the father of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw. This statement was sent to Pittsburg by the women in a letter in which it was requested that the matter be published. The letter a so is signed by the women. The clause asking for publicity reads:

"We are known to have property in Washington, and will assume the entire responsibility."

The signed statement, in part, follows:

"The attitude Mrs. Charles J. Holman, mother of Mrs. Harry K. Thaw, has taken toward her daughter Evelyn, is, to our minds, almost inhuman.

"The evidence given at the trial reflects very discreditably upon Mrs. Holman's character. Had she been a true mother she would have taken in washing before putting her daughter out as an artists' model or a chorus girl, knowing what temptations under such circumstances would be placed in the child's way.

"What girl could live the life that Evelyn lived and come out untarnished? Mothers, do you think your daughters could be placed in the same circumstances, with such a man as Stanford White to teach them morality—what was right and what was wrong—placed in his hands for protection at the age of fifteen years—pass through such a crisis, and come through all right?

"Admitting that Mrs. Holman did not know the true character of Stanford White, should she have left her beautiful little girl under the charge of an influential man of the world, unprotected otherwise, and in New York City? And now, considering that she did all this innocently—giving her the benefit of a thousand doubts—is she not inhuman to turn against her daughter in the hour of her need? Torture such as no woman has ever undergone she is voluntarily bearing bravely and nobly, showing that underneath the fair and fragile beauty there lies a stratum of pure gold, which she must have inherited from her father. Her father's family was known in Pittsburg and Alleghany City as a family whose men were brave and honorable and whose women were virtuous.

IS TRIAL SIMPLY A DEFENCE OF WHITE?

By Rev. Dr. Madison C. Peters

Copyright, 1907, American-Journal-Examiner.

MANY people are beginning to ask, is the trial of Harry Thaw a real effort of justice to ascertain if the defendant is responsible for his act, or merely a defence of the memory of Stanford White? It looks very much like the latter, and as if Jerome holds a brief for the clearing of the architect's name and not for the cause of the people of the city and county of New York. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw has not been allowed to tell her story in full and the salient points have been kept out.

It is Jerome's duty to prosecute, but not to persecute, and it is not for him to hold up Stanford White as a model of goodness and propriety. He cannot do so, for the facts are against him and controvert his desires; he can never paint the architect white, no matter how he may try, nor can he blacken Thaw with the disreputable colors he is seeking to borrow from the man he once denounced as a blackmailer and helped to convict of crime, a conspirator who was publicly found guilty, and who, if he were a poor man, would be behind the bars to-day.

Clear the memory of White he can never do, for the architect has left such an indelible stain of shame and dishonor on the escutcheon of the city as never can be obliterated; his blackened tracks are imprinted in adamantine disgrace, and his name ever arises as a foul miasma in the nostrils of decent men.

Evelyn's Relations Regarding White Backed by Others.

'Tis not the revolting, heart-wrecking, soul-harrowing story of the little betrayed girl alone which has placed White in such a scarlet light of profligacy, debauchery and unspeakable crime, but the fearful revelations made by others whom he enticed to destruction and ruin and who can fully corroborate the words of Evelyn Thaw.

'Tis these victims that the District Attorney is moving heaven and earth to keep in the background, for he knows, once their names and testimony are given to the world, he might as well try to fly to the moon as attempt to whitewash White. Not a single name has been allowed mention in connection with the dead man, and every time Delmas has endeavored by indirect inference to draw from the witness some detail respecting White's relations with other women he has been unable to elicit any damaging testimony in regard to the architect, owing to the objections of Jerome.

The California lawyer has shown himself a clever and astute counsel, but he is on foreign soil and among strangers, and, perhaps, this has something to do with his failure to get his questions allowed by the court. A court of justice is no place for prejudice and every one should get a square deal. Time after time Jerome keeps reiterating, as if to impress the fact on the minds of the jury and get their sympathy, "Stanford White is dead." "Mr. White is dead," in a mournful voice, as if he were bereaved of his best friend.

Jerome as Chief Mourner, But Only Acts a Part.

We all know Stanford White is dead, and we know, too, the world is nothing poorer for his absence; nothing worse, but a little bit better, for the purity of womanhood has one less monster to guard against, one wolf less to attack the fold of innocence and carry off the lamb of virtue.

Is there anyone to mourn him? Is there anyone to come forward and defend his memory but Jerome himself? But although the District Attorney appears to be the sole and chief mourner, he is only playing a role, just as respectable actors have often to take the part of the villain. An honest, open-hearted man has to enact Shylock, and a sane individual assume the mask and leering eyes of Hamlet, the mad Prince of Denmark.

So with Jerome. The State is paying him for the prosecution of Harry Thaw, and he thinks in order to effect his ends he must laud White in order to condemn Thaw. But an actor who tries to attain too great a degree of excellence very often fails in his part and becomes worse than the lowest "super" in the company.

This may be the case with Jerome. He may be a favorite with the stage manager, but it is the people who are the audience, and it is to them he must look for approval or disapprobation.

Can Jerome gain any credit and serve any useful purpose to try and blacken little Evelyn Thaw. He cannot blacken her. She told her story and most of the world now believes it, so every handful of mud Jerome may sling at her will miss its aim and only foul the more the ghastly, loathsome, revolting memory of the man who wronged her.

Moreover, Evely Thaw is not on trial; it is her husband, and I don't see how Jerome can hope to convict him by defaming her. What is the issue at stake? As I understand the case it is to either prove or disprove Thaw's insanity at the time of the commission of tue deed for which he is now on trial. The whole affair focuses around this as a center. Now there is no effect without a cause, so that if a man suddenly becomes insane and commits a lawless act while in that state there must be some cause. This is just what the defence is trying to prove, but Jerome is doing his best to thwart their efforts. What made Harry Thaw insane? This is the question, and its answer will bring the solution of the case.

Delmas and his colleagues, despite Jerome, will endeavor to give the answer satisfactorily to the jurors who constitute the board of examiners, and on them will devolve the duty of indorsing it as correct or rejecting it as wrong.

"ALL SIGNS FAVOR THAW'S ACQUITTAL"

By Charles Somerville.

NEW YORK, March 11.—Notwithstanding all that District-Attorney Jerome may do, notwithstanding all the evidence that his corps of sleuths may bring to bear in an effort to break down Evelyn Nesbit's story, through which she now appears to the jury as a beautiful young creature whose innocence and goodness had no chance by reason of the garish surroundings of her early girlhood, the probability of Harry Thaw's acquittal for the murder of Stanford White seems to rest in his own acts—in acts performed two years before he shot White down.

One o fthese acts was when Harry Thaw married Evelyn Nesbit. On that same day he wrote his will. And that document is in the hands of his jury, making as eloquent a plea in his behalf as even the famous Delmas can possibly make. And every letter Harry Thaw wrote after he came to know Evelyn Nesbit's story of Stanford White's villainy makes now a strong plea for the saving of his life.

Will Bears Out Wife's Story.

His marriage proved the greatness and purity of his love for Evelyn Nesbit. The will he made that day bears out Evelyn Thaw's testimony, which is that Thaw believed Stanford White had horribly used the young woman, who had awakened in Thaw the great love of his life. It proves the misery of his state of mind over the woman he absolutely idolized, having fallen into such conscienceless treachery as she has sworn before the world. And there are the letters. There is an agony of mind, a slow, burning, steady sense of outrage displayed in their incoherencies. And evry now and then there are flashes of great tenderness coming out of a disordered mind.

These documents prove that Harry Thaw loved Evelyn Nesbit as finely as any man loves a woman—as respectfully and honorably—and they prove that he believed that this girl had been terribly sinned against by Standford White. They show that the figure o' White filled his mind with rage, with fear and with bitterness. And these letters further show that Thaw had applied to the law in vain for the exposure and punishment of the man who had wronged his wife, and whom he brooded over as a menace to his future happiness; whose scalding tongue he feared and who had grown up gradually in his mind as a monstrous thing—a tiger preying upon the young and innocent.

Feared for His Own Life.

It was not until Thaw had returned discouraged from the law, whose agents waved him aside, that his desperate mind conceived desperate deeds. All this time it has been shown that he was in fear of his own life, in fear that his enemy, whom he believed implacable, would cause his assassination, or indeed, himself murder him. Whatever Jerome may now prove can only be things against Evelyn Nesbit Thaw. And here the tales are many but the facts forthcoming are very scarce, as Mr. Jerome knows full well from the reports of his sleuths.

Once there is granted the mental distress of Thaw, covering a period of three years, it will not be hard for the jury to believe that he suffered the "brain storm" that the alienists declare he did that night when he suddenly left his wife and friends to kill Stanford White.

Moreover, Jerome went treading on dangerous ground when he seemingly tried to make Thaw's experts admit that Thaw, as he sits on trial for his life, is a maniac. Palpably his questions sought a confirmation of his own growing convicton that Thaw is crazy.

Jerome Has Aided Defence.

And it is equally true that when Thaw's experts were pressed to declare whether Thaw was insane or not at the present time, they shied wildly and ran to cover as speedily as their swift intellects would take them there. But it is nothing to the jury whether Thaw is sane or insane at the present time. That will not be the question for them at all. The only question they will have to answer is, "Was Thaw insane when he shot Stanford White Jwas he so mentally disordered that he could not tell the difference between right and wrong?"

Quite skilfully Delmas had the experts tell of Thaw still showing evidences of mental derangement for months after the shooting, but he stopped this line of inquiry within five months of the time when Thaw was brought to trial.

Certainly Jerome seems to have given no little aid to the defence in creating in the jury's mind an impression that even his prosecutor does not think Thaw mentally sound.

Signs Indicate Acquittal.

There is only one point in which the defence failed to produce what was expected of it. It was thought that a letter existed which was sent by White to Evelyn Thaw within a little time of the shooting—a letter plainly exposing White as planning to attack Thaw's honor and his wife's honor. That letter may exist, and it may be produced later in the trial. If it is finally laid with Thaw's will and Thaw's letters in the jury's hands, every sign indicates that Harry Thaw will be acquitted of the murder of Stanford White.

Evelyn Thaw has told of White's presuming to speak to her within a few weeks of the shooting and of his attempt to follow her on the occasion of another meeting. But this attempt to follow her was only vaguely indicated by a turning cab. However, if the jury accepts Mrs. Thaw's story, it will probably accept it entire.

Still, the letter thought to exist would be a powerful piece of evidence.

It may be that Thaw's lawyers have seen their way clear to introduce this letter as their crowning piece of evidence in Thaw's behalf, to be produced just before Delmas makes his summing up address—an address which, judging from the advocate's grace of diction and flashing satire, as displayed in tilts with Jerome, it will be a high privilege to hear.

O'MEARA BARS POSTALS SUNDAY

Police Commissioner Stephen J. O'Meara has placed the blue law ban on Sunday selling of souvenir postal cards.

"Arrest all violators of this order," commanded the Commissioner, when he issued the mandate to Superintendent of Police Pierce Saturday night. No arrests were made.

In explaining the order, Commissioner O'Meara said that distributors of the plain postal cards printed and sold by Uncle Sam were not to be molested. The Commissioner, however, does not believe that the tinselled and many-colored cards published by private individuals come under the class of necessities of life, but are, rather, merchandise that can be bought on other days than Sunday.

FIGHT CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

ALBANY, N. Y., March 11.—The fight to abolish capital punishment in this State will begin in earnest to-morrow, when a delegation of opponents of the death penalty will reach here and try to create favorable sentiment for a bill making the punishment for murder in the first degree imprisonment for life instead of death by electricity.

The recent execution in Sing Sing prison of young Furlong and Granger, both below the age of manhood, has brought many former scoffers into line for the movement, and it is stated to-day that delegations will be on hand from nearly every city in the State.

SCENES AT BIG AUTO AND POWER BOAT SHOW AT MECHANICS BUILDING

Motor Magnates Swarm to City—Look for Greatest Sales in History of Trade—Say Exhibit Is a Record Breaker.

By C. Kerrison.

THE presence of hundreds of automobiles in the streets adjoining Horticultural and Mechanics' Halls early to-day bespoke the arrival of the real activity of the big industrial show that is now being held under the auspices of the Boston Automobile Dealers' Association. In that locality all one could see were motor vehicles under their own headway, either laden down with interested humanity or else waiting for the arrival of those who desired to see with their own eyes the ability of the cars to perform creditably.

It was an automobile show in itself; one that appealed most entrancingly to those who are educated in motor lore and likewise to those who desire to become more proficient. Hundreds of cars, of every sort and character; of every size, price and appointment, were to be seen on the streets. The water cooled vied with the air cooled, the gasolene explosion contended the roads with the steamers and the easy, quiet-running electric vehicles.

Closed or limousines there were in great numbers, but the touring cars predominated to a considerable degree. What impressed the observing was the presence of the great number of runabouts, from the natty little cars of light horse power up to the big fellows of four and six cylinders, with horse power sufficient to accomplish the most exacting task imaginable. There was surely something to see and inspect.

Truly a Record Breaker.

The opening of the show this morning gave one an opportunity to still further inspect the exhibits, to secure an adequate idea of what was in the worldom of motoring, not alone in vehicles but likewise in boats. The result was most gratifying. In comparison with what had gone before, it is truly a record breaker. The decorations are extraordinary good and reflect credit upon Chester I. Campbell, who designed them.

All of the exhibits are handsomely staged and it is a matter of pride to the local manufacturers that their cars show the same thoughtfulness of study and painstaking care of the workmen in their construction and finish. There are several cars which stand out from among the rest in the matter of finish, whatever may be hidden under the bonnet. It is only reasonable to believe, however, that if the exterior shows excellence of finish, that the interior work is not lacking in thought and consideration.

Many of the exhibits which were lacking in one or two models on Saturday, the opening night, managed to secure the same from the railroads yesterday, so that when the show opened to-day there were but few displays lacking completeness.

No Business Early.

While the show is open to the general public from 10 in the morning until 11 at night, the morning hours are usually devoted to the trade and those who desire to purchase. The trade is always there in the early hours of the day, realizing as it does, that it cannot do any business with the dealers after the noon hour. The man who really wants to purchase a car is likewise on hand in the early hours, as he, thoroughly appreciating the situation, gets around when he can have an intelligent talk with the salesman without danger of being interrupted by the ones who come to "rubber."

In speaking of the volume of business that is expected to be done at this exhibit, Harry Fosdick, of the Harry Fosdick Company, said to-day: "I believe that this will be a record week for retail sales. There are cars here of every taste and character, to fit every pocketbook, and from what I saw on Saturday night I am confident that most of the exhibitors will have disposed of their allotment, or at least the better part of the same, before the show closes on Saturday night next."

J. W. Maguire expressed the same opinion, saying that from what little he had seen he felt that he would have disposed of his allotment for the year within the next two or three weeks.

Shortage in Cars Likely.

A. E. Morrison said: "The demand for runabouts has increased three-fold since last year, and although rather early in the week to make predictions, I am satisfied that there will be as great a shortage in runabouts as there is now in high-grade high-powered touring cars. This talk of early sales, and a stringency of several of the high grade cars, is by no means an illusion. I wish it were. We could do a whole lot more business if we had the cars, either Oldsmobile or Stearns."

Charles Fay, who has the four-cylinder Ford runabout, is delighted with the way things went on Saturday night, and the appearances to-day. He has rather scored a beat on his competitors, having made such arrangements that a man who desires one of the Ford runabouts can have a demonstration in a car and if satisfied with its performance to such extent as to permit him to part with the requisite $600, he can drive away from the building with his own vehicle, a number having been located on an adjoining street. This is quick sales and quick delivery. The only trouble is the small number of cars at his disposal.

Although the show was closed to the public yesterday, the men of the trade found no great opportunity to rest. There was work for them all, and they performed it most thoroughly. During the morning hours almost every man connected with an exhibit was to be found in either Mechanics' Hall or Horticultural Hall, arranging this, that or the other thing. At noon they enjoyed lunch at their hotels or else at the home of the Bay State Automobile Association.

Motor Kings Here.

Next to the local dealers the hotel men are reaping the harvest from the show. Every hotel in the city is crowded to overflowing and visitors are constantly arriving. Almost every manufacturer has sent his personal representative to Boston to see and be seen, and before the week closes there will be many more. It is understood that Alexander Winton will arrive in a day or two as the guest of Manager F. A. Hinchcliffe of the Winton Co.

Wherever one went yesterday he was sure to run against some well-known man in the motor world. President Joy of the Packard Company was among the early arrivals, he being entertained by Alvan T. Fuller. He saw enough to convince him that Boston is all right when it comes to auto shows.

Manager James Joyce of the American Locomotive Company, makers of the Berliet, was also in town as the guest of C. F. Whitney, of the Park Square station.

E. R. Thomas, the famous Buffalo manufacturer, arrived early to-day, establishing his headquarters at the Touraine. He was met by his personal representative, Montgomery Hallowell, and Harry Fosdick and Alfred Robbins, his local representatives. Mr. Thomas was asked why the N. A. A. M. had refused to support the Glidden tour and explained his position as follows:

Tours Best Tests.

"Of course I have not yet received the report as to the reasons for this recommendation and until I do I cannot form a competent opinion.

"But one thing is sure. Manufacturers cannot but profit by tours of this kind. They give his cars tests that the hardest user would put them to—the very thing he wants.

"Not only do we benefit in learning where we can improve our cars, but in showing which ones are the staunchest and most reliable. The superiority of American over foreign cars for American roads was conclusively shown in the last Glidden tour, and one of the best arguments in favor of tours from the standpoint of the American manufacturer is that a foreign car has never finished in an American endurance or reliability contest with a perfect score.

"Contests of this kind not only aid in the improvement of cars and demonstrate the assertions of American manufacturers on the superiority of their product, but they stir up a healthy interest in automobiling, and are the strongest efforts that can be put forward for the improvement of our roads."

Mr. Thomas would not say whether he would withdraw his two entries in the proposed gold cup tour in Europe, as a result of the action of the N. A. A. M. executive committee.

Many Interesting Features.

A feature that attracts much attention in the Berliet, shown by the Park Square Automobile Company, is a direct drive on the third and fourth speeds. This is formed in the 40-horsepower model and is accomplished in a manner strikingly simple, enabling the driver to keep running on the third speed as smoothly as on the high. Another distinction feature of interest is a small brake operating automatically on the transmission shaft when the clutch is thrown out. This checks the momentum and saves the gear. A Berliet top, with a rakish, shovel-nose contour, is novel in that it is supported wholly from the rear stanchions and requires no irons on the front seat. This offers extra convenience as well as grace. The chassis is remarkable for the superiority of material and exquisite workmanship. The Locomotive Company is one of the few concerns making prompt deliveries. The metal part of the chassis are imported in separate blank forms from the French factory at Lyon, then machined and built up at Providence. By this method, the advantages of the foreign castings and forgings are combined with the advantages of American machinery and workmanship and the car adapted for American conditions, with the further gain of duty being paid on raw material only, instead of finished product.

Three models are shown, a 22-horsepower limousine, a 40-horsepower touring car and a 40-horsepower polished chassis. A 60-horsepower model is made but not exhibited, for want of room. All these models are made in touring cars, limousine and runabouts.

Not United on No Tours.

Among the arrivals in connection with the automobile show to-day is Benjamin Briscoe of the Maxwell-Briscoe Motor Company, who was recently elected president of the A. M. C. M. A. One object in Mr. Briscoe's Boston trip is to confer with H. A. Grant in regard to an alcohol fuel economy test, which the latter plans running off in the near future, in a Maxwell especially constructed for that purpose. Mr. Grant conducted the three-car comparative fuel test which reached Boston on January 31. The latter event stands to the credit of the Maxwell car in that it was an entirely satisfactory and successful road demonstration of the use of denatured alcohol as a fuel in internal combustion motors.

It now appears that the action of the N. A. A. M. in expressing its disbelief in the value of the A. A. A. Glidden tour and the affairs promoted by the Automobile Club of America, was nothing like unanimous, at least so far as the whole trade is concerned. In fact the members of the American Motor Car Manufacturers' Association, consisting of forty manufacturers in this country, one maker of which captured the Deming trophy of the Glidden tour last year, are strongly in favor of touring contests and are ready to support them in every possible way.

It is well known that the A. M. C. M. A., which is in the minority in the N. A. A. M., is disinclined to follow all the actions of that body, which, as is generally known, is controlled entirely by the A. L. A. M.

Want Earlier Shows.

The members of the American Association have expressed great enthusiasm for both the Glidden tour and the A. C. A. project, believing that the public is entitled to such contests in order to properly understand the value of various cars. The statement that these tours teach nothing, is refuted by the fact that of the seventy-five cars which started last year on the trip from Buffalo to Bretton Woods, only thirteen made perfect scores. The others had numerous troubles, which lost them points, but which taught their makers where added strength was required, particularly in clutches, bearings, springs, axles and brakes.

That the demand for earlier shows is gathering strength is proven by the petition of the Chicago Automobile Trade Association for the affair in Chicago to be held in November or December, instead of in February. This petition was presented to the National Association of Automobile Manufacturers, under whose auspices the Chicago affair is held, and the opinion is general that the exhibition will certainly be held in the Fall of this year, instead of next February. This is considered the representative exposition of the industry, for all manufacturers are combined in the one big show, whereas in New York, two buildings are required to house them and they are held on dates far apart.

When it is known that two or three makers already have 1908 models going through tests, and everyone of them will have their 1908 models ready to show in September, and that these models will show very few radical changes from the 1907 type, there seems no argument left in favor of a show in January or February, which only shortens the selling season and supplies an interval of four months when there is little or no business going on in the retail trade.

It is worth noting that the American Motor Car Manufacturers' Association originated the idea of an early show and combined with the Automobile Club of America in the affair at the Grand Central Palace in New York last December.

The Massachusetts State Automobile Association has established headquarters at Space 27, Mechanics building, where Secretary James Fortesque is on hand and will be glad to answer questions and welcome recruits to the colors. The State association has done an inestimable amount of excellent work in local motoring affairs during the past two or three years, its legislative committee having always worked to secure a fair and comprehensive automobile law. Chairman Speare of that committee has made the same the most important one in the State association, and its work alone has been of such a character as to commend the organization to all motorists.

The standing of the Boston motor show in the world at large is perhaps best known by the fact that all of the leading newspapers and automobile magazines of the country are represented. Duncan Curry, known throughout the country as a motor expert, is here in the interests of his paper, Hearst's New York American. Arthur Jervis is representing the New York Sun, and John Eustis the Globe, while W. S. Young and James Fortescue are intent upon caring for the interests of Motor, and A. B. Batchelder and R. F. Kelsey find that their combined efforts are necessary in order to give to the readers of the Automobile an adequate and comprehensive word picture of Boston's greatest.

GIRL BABY'S AWFUL ECZEMA

Sight of Eye Destroyed by Disease—Tried Five Doctors but Grew Worse—In Agony Eight Months—Parents Discouraged, Until They Tried Cuticura Remedies

IN ONE WEEK ALL SORES DISAPPEARED

"Our little girl, one year and a half old, was taken with eczema or that was what the doctor said it was. We called in the family doctor and he gave some tablets and said she would be all right in a few days. The eczema grew worse and we called in doctor No. 2. He said she was teething, as soon as the teeth were through she would be all right. But she still grew worse. Doctor No. 3 said it was eczema. By this time she was nothing but a yellow, greenish sore. Well, he said he could help her, so we let him try it about a week. One morning we discovered a little yellow pimple on one of her eyes. Of course we 'phoned for doctor No. 3. He came over and looked her over and said that he could not do anything more for her, that we had better take her to some eye specialist, since it was an ulcer. So we went to Oswego to doctor No. 4, and he said the eyesight was gone, but that he could help it. We thought we would try doctor No. 5. Well, that proved the same, only he charged $10 more than doctor No. 4. We were nearly discouraged. I saw one of the Cuticura advertisements in the paper and thought we would try the Cuticura Treatment, so I went and purchased a set of Cuticura Remedies, which cost me $1, and in three days our daughter, who had been sick about eight months, showed great improvement, and in one week all sores had disappeared. Of course it could not restore the eyesight, but if we had used Cuticura in time I am confident that it would have saved the eye. We think there is no remedy so good for any skin trouble or impurity of the blood as Cuticura. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Abbott, R. F. D. No. 9, Fulton, Oswego Co., N. Y., August 17, 1906."

REAL 'JETHRO BASS' TELLS OF FIRST VICTORY

Lured New Hampshire Voters With B. & M. Stationery and Bag Full of Confederate Bills.

DOESN'T DARE GO HOME

Special to the Boston American.

CONCORD, N. H., March 11.—A new Jethro Bass has arisen in New Hampshire. His power is not so extended as that of Ruel Durkee, the sage of Croydon, and the famous prototype of the hero of "Coniston," Winston Churchill's novel, but in playing the game of politics according to the approved New Hampshire style he can give them all a lesson. This individual is John J. Mayhue, the Representative from the backwoods town of Dalton. His gigantic figure, Lincolnesque features and quaint mannerisms have been the talk of the present session of the Legislature. His own story of the manner in which he won his election to the House has made a sensation.

"I hain't much at tellin' yarns," said Mayhue at the biennial "ladies' night" of the Portsmouth delegation, so-called because the only restriction was that the ladies should be left at home, "but I'll tell ye all, jest haow I happen to be daown t' Concord ez Representative to this ere session of the Gineral Court.

"My taown is Dalton, way up in th' mountains. We hain't gut but 158 voters thar an' the most o' them fellers are durned black Republicans. The Republican men most allus carry the taown. I am one of the Dimicratic men, but I have gut the boys to 'lect me selectmen once.

"Wall, last Fall, the Republican men held their caucus an' they put up Frank Tillotson to go to Concord. Some of th' Republican men didn't like Frank an' so they wanted to git into our caucus an' nominate one o' their own men thar.

Said He Would Run.

"I said, 'No, we would have one of our own men or nothing.' None of our Dimicratic men wanted to run an' at last I sed I would.

"I knowed they had two Republican men to one of us Dimicratic men. I knowed, too, that 'Mell' Shurtleef allus sends a lot o' Republican money into our taown. Th' money is about all them Republican fellers have, any way. I didn't know then just haow it was agoin' to be done, but I 'old my wife that I was goin' daown to th' Legislater or my name wan't Jack Mayhue.

"Well, about three days arter that I went daown t' Whitefield an' I gut one o' my friends thar t' write me a letter. He writ it on Boston an' Maine writin' paper an' it said as haow he had sint me two hundred dollars for my campaign fund an' if that wan't enough t' call for more. I showed that letter t' all the fellers 'round thar. They thought thar was somethin' doin', but you orter seen their eyes stick out when I showed them fellers another letter from John Hutchins, who was a runnin' for Senator on the Dimicratic ticket, sayin' as haow he'd sint me a hundred an' fifty. Pretty soon I gut a whole roll o' old Confedrit bills. I hain't bin able t' use them much since, but they did have great perlitical effect when I showed them t' th' boys with a good bill on th' outside. Them fellers must a thought I had ez much ez a thousan' dollars.

Loaded Canvas Bag.

"Well, some o' my own Dimicratic men had gut another feller t' run agin me an' so you see I had pretty tough sailin'.

"Some of ye know I used to run a slot machine so I took the canvas bag I used t' have t' keep th' nickels in then an' I marked it '$1,000—Whitefield Bank.'

"I gut th' last week's Whitefield Times an' I stuffed it into th' bottom o' that bag.

"My wife said: 'Jack, what air yew adoin'.'

"Sez I, 'Margaret, this ere bag is a goin' t' carry th' 'lection to-morrer, an' 'lect me t' th' Legislater.'

"I didn't know ez it would work, but I pulled out them old Confedrit bills an' I stuffed them into th' top o' that canvas bag so ez they would jest show out over th' top.

"Wall, on 'lection mornin', I went up to the taown house an' I hung 'round. Pretty soon some of the fellers came up an' they wanted to know haow much I was a goin' t' pay.

"I pulled out that old canvas bag an' when them fellers see haow much money I seemed t' have yew orter seen their eyes stick out.

"Sez I: 'Boys, I hain't a goin' t' buy no votes t' day. But if I'm 'lected I'm a goin' t' divide up what is in this bag among ye.

Fall Over Themselves.

"Wall, ye'd orter seen them fellers. They fell over themselves t' git up t' th' polls an' vote for me. That arternoon I sees Frank Tillotson, an' I sez: 'Frank, ye hain't gut no show,' and sez he: 'Jack, I know it. Yew hev gut too much money fer me!'

"I knowed I was 'lected then, jest ez well as I did when I found out I hed two votes to all the other candidates put together. So I tells the boys t' come daown to the hoss shed an' my brother-in-law would divide up th' contents o' that air bag.

"Wall, I had pressin' business daown t' Whitefield at just that time an' when I gut back th' boys looked pretty mad. I asked them what the matter was an' they said as haow they thought they wus a goin' t' git more o' the contents o' that bag.

"'Why,' sez I, 'didn't you see my brother-in-law.'

"They all sez 'No,' an' I put on a very surprised look an' I sez:

"'Wall, that is too bad. But I allus did think that durned brother-in-law o' mine was a thief. He's run away with all o' that money.'

"They looked ez if they didn't think I was exactly tellin' the truth. They talked the thing over an' from the way they looked I thought I had better start for Concord though the Legislater was nigh onter six weeks off an' the Boston an' Maine hadn't give me that pass yet.

"I tell ye, them woodchoppers air a hard lot when they git mad an' I hain't ben t' taown since that time."

The True King.

The blood is the vital fluid of the human body. Therefore, it must be pure and not clogged with foreign substances of a poisonous nature if perfect health is to be enjoyed. Otherwise disease of a most distressing nature will surely follow, such as rheumatism, gout, lumbago, etc. Dr. Burkhart's Vegetable Compound is essentially a blood remedy, a fact verified by the almost numberless cases in which it has effected a cure. Space will not permit the citing of more than one testimonial, but it has the true ring: "Dr. Burkhart's Vegetable Compound is undoubtedly the greatest medicine known to the present age, and it cured me of lumbago and gout in 30 days. Not only has my experience urged me to declare its great virtues, but my acquaintances are equally eloquent in its praise."—Edward S. Crowell, Urbana, Ohio. Thirty days' treatment 25c. # IN WOMEN'S ATTIRE MAN CHASES GIRLS

Prowler Annoys Melrose Young Women and Escapes Angry Father Later.

MORE POLICE ARE NEEDED

Clad in feminine attire, a young man has been frightening Melrose young women on Upham street in that city. He followed four last evening until they ran, and chased one young woman to the door of her home. Her father appeared and started in pursuit of the young man, whose sprinting ability proved too much for the irate father. The four girls figuring in the adventure were Misses Edna and Beatrice Robertson of Sewall street, Miss Beatrice Kelly of Upham street and Miss Rita Johnson of Hillside avenue, Melrose. The father of Miss Kelly was the man who tried to capture the man in feminine clothes.

The young women are positive that their annoyer was a man. Miss Robertson saw him plainly, she says, and declares he was "good looking." He attempted to hug the Kelly girl, it is said, but her screams appeared to startle him. When the young women started to run he immediately gave chase.

Melrose people fear the young man may be another "Jack-the-Hugger," and there is talk to-day of circulating a petition for better police protection. Policeman Louis Heaton, the officer patrolling the Upham street section, has a beat covering about fifteen miles, it is said. There are only eleven policemen in the city.

TO RAISE BIG THANKS FUND

As a thank offering for 300 years of Christian influence in English-speaking America the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States is to raise a great missionary fund of $1,750,000. The plan is for the fund to be used for church extension. It will be presented at the general convention of the denomination this year at Richmond, Va.

China wants $286,000 of the fund; Japan, $116,000; Brazil, $90,000, while Honolulu sends in a request for $187,500 and $20,000 is needed in the Philippines, $29,750 in Porto Rico and $125,000 in Cuba. The United States will have $775,000 for church interests.

WOMAN GETS $3500 FOR HORSE THAT COST $30.

PORTLAND, Me., March 11.—Last Summer Mrs. Maud W. Haskell, the best woman judge of horses in Maine, bought for $30 an old skeleton of a horse that was working in a lumber wagon in Bangor. She saw good points and cared for him until he got back into form. She has just sold the animal, a handsome dapple-gray, to a New York society woman for $3,500.

DOCTORS DECLARE HUMAN SOUL HAS BEEN WEIGHED, MEASURED

Experiments Show That Body Shrinks at Instant of Death, Assert Physicians.

Prominent physicians of Massachusetts declare that they have weighed the immortal soul.

Their discovery that the soul has substance—that it is an actual material thing with form and weight—is one of the most wonderful results of scientific research of the Twentieth Century.

The BOSTON AMERICAN is able to-day to give the result of the daring experiments of five physicians who were associated in the marvelous work. It has been jealously guarded by them until they were absolutely sure that there could not be a possible mistake in their conclusions.

Doctors Who Vouch for Tests.

One of the doctors who led in the explorations for this elusive part of the human being is Dr. Duncan MacDougall of Haverhill. Two of the four other physicians associated with him in the work are Dr. Sproul of the same city and Dr. Grant of Lawrence.

These men, with nicely adjusted scales weighed five men and one woman shortly before death and then a moment after the spirit took its flight. Accounting for every known physical change that would take place as a result of death, they found that there was a loss of weight varying from half an ounce to an ounce.

This weight, the physicians declare, represented the disappearance from the body of the immortal soul.

Dogs, believed to be the nearest animal to the human without souls, were weighed in the same manner before and at the time of death. There was no corresponding loss of weight to represent the flitting of the immortal part.

Seven Sets of Experiments.

Here are the experiments that the doctors made:

No. 1—Man with tuberculosis, of ordinary temperament, watched by five doctors four hours. After death weighed one ounce less.

No. 2—Man with tuberculosis. Watched by same doctors. Loss of weight by death about an ounce.

No. 3—Heavy man of phlegmatic disposition. No immediate change of weight by death, but in a minute loss of about one ounce.

No. 4—Woman. Loss of weight by death from one half an ounce to an ounce.

No. 5—Man. Loss of weight by death about an ounce.

No. 6—Man. Loss of weight by death about an ounce.

No. 7—Observation of thirteen dogs. No los of weight by death.

Marked Result at First Effort.

The method of finding this result, as followed by the doctors, was to place the dying patients in bed upon one of the platforms of a pair of scales made expressly for the experiments, and then to balance this weight by placing an equal weight in the opposite platform. These scales were so delicately constructed as to be sensitive to a weight of less than one-tenth of an ounce.

In every case when the soul was set free by death the platform opposite the one in which lay the subject of the test fell suddenly just as naturally would have happened if a weight had been taken from the opposing balance. The figures on the dial index indicated the diminishment in weight.

Scales Made for the Work.

Dr. MacDougal, in discussing the remarkable results of their experiments, had this to say:

"My first experiment was particularly strong in the affirmative. A set of platform scales, delicately balanced, were secured, and upon these a light framework was constructed, a light bed arranged and the dying man placed nopu that bed as comfortable as in any other, and receiving the same or more constant care than would otherwise have been given him.

"While practically moribund when placed upon the scales, he was under our observation for five hours before the final moment.

"It was discovered that the loss in weight from the moisture of respiration and the moisture of the body and all excretions was regular about an ounce an hour, the weight on the beam having to be moved every fifteen minutes to maintain the balance.

Scales Fell as Death Came.

"At the supreme moment, the beam of the scales fell with a perceptible stroke, and there was shown to be a loss in weight of three-quarters of an ounce. In the two other cases which were positively affirmative the loss in weight was not as great, but it was enough to be convincing.

"Every possible explanation of loss of weight was figured out. Air was weighed, and it was found that a pint of air weighed about ten grains, so that in full respiration the expulsion of the air in the man's body could not have been more than a minute fraction of the ounce. We stood upon the scales and breathed out every particle of air within our power and then breathed in our fullest inspirations and did not disturb the balance of the scales, and there was nothing left for us to believe except at the moment when life passed away, when death came over the physical body and the immortal soul passed out of its casement to its other existence, there went out of the man a substance which at least had weight, whatever other attributes and form of known substance it lacked.

Seven Tests That, Doctors Say, Proved Soul Has Weight

No. 1. Man with tuberculosis of ordinary temperament; watched by doctors four hours. After death weighed 1 ounce less.

No. 2. Man with tuberculosis. Watched by same doctors. Loss of weight by death about an ounce.

No. 3. Heavy man of phlegmatic disposition. No immediate change of weight by death, but in a minute loss of about 1 ounce.

No. 4. Woman. Loss of weight by death from one-half an ounce to an ounce.

No. 5. Man. Loss of weight by death about an ounce.

No. 6. Man. Loss of weight by death about an ounce.

No. 7. Observation of thirteen dogs. No loss of weight by death.

Tests on Dogs Revealed No Change. Medical Men Astounded at the Discovery.

No Loss of Weight in Dogs.

"While not of importance in determining the question as to the identity of this substance which is human life, it was a matter of no small degree of interest to learn by 13 experiments with animals that at the hour of death there was an entire absence of that loss of weight which characterized the passing of human life.

"Dogs were the subjects of these experiments conducted in my own barn here, the animals weighing from fifteen to seventy pounds, and in the heaviest of them there was no change in the balance of the scales when life passed out of the body. Associated with me in these experiments were Dr. Grant of Lawrence and Dr. Sproul of this city and interested in them have been leading men of the profession in this and other cities."

Dr. J. J. Putnam of Newbury street, this city, said he never heard of such a thing, and should hesitate long before believing it.

Professor William James of Harvard University says that the exact moment of the occurrence of death is so very vague as to be difficult to determine. He would class the theory of the Haverhill physician with "those fantastic cranky ideas men get hold of sometimes."

CRIPPLED HANDS AND FEET

Marvellous Cure of Rheumatism by

MINARD'S "KING OF PAIN" LINIMENT

"Four years ago I was taken with rheumatism. I lost the use of my hands and had to go to the hospital, but did not get any relief. I also had it in my limbs and body and could not walk for six months. I was a patient in the Homeopathic Hospital, the Emergency Hospital, and the New England Hospital, and did not get any relief from any of them. I also went to the Fourth Grade Hospital in New York. Some of Boston's best physicians attended me and still I found no relief. For three years I could not do any work at all, but for the last year, since using Minard's Liniment, I am able to do all my housework. I think that I know the worth of Minard's Liniment better than any person who has ever suffered with rheumatism. Hundreds of people who know of my suffering give Minard's Liniment the praise. I wish that every one knew the worth of this Liniment as I do. Yours truly, Mrs. Emma B. Williams, 52 Sawyer St., Boston."

Mothers Know Best and It's Well for Girls to Learn It

By Beatrice Fairfax

I WONDER if the day will ever come when the girl in her teens will realize that her mother "knows best." The average girl of eighteen thinks herself a miracle of knowledge and feels equal to coping with any situation

She thinks that she understands men, and resents any interference or advice from her parents.

When her mother tells her that it looks bad for a young girl to stay out late at night, she thinks her mother has old-fashioned ideas. She prefers the advice and confidence of some silly little girl her own age to that of her mother.

Knows Both Sides

WHY is it, girls, that you look upon the person who loves you more unselfishly than any one else in the world as the person most eager to spoil your good times?

Your mother wants you to be happy and to have the best of fun, but she knows the ever-ready pitfalls which young feet may stumble into, and her one thought is to protect you from them.

Do not form acquaintances with men whom you cannot bring to the house. If a man tells you that there are reasons why he cannot meet your parents, say to him, "Then there must be reasons why I should not know you," and drop the friendship.

If a married man tells you that he takes a fatherly interest in you, don't believe him. His interest is not fatherly and will do you no good.

Remember, that if you are seen with men of doubtful reputation good men will keep away from you. Neither can you afford to be seen with girls whose reputations bear the least blemish.

You may be absolutely good and innocent, but the world judges a girl by the company she keeps.

Confide in Her

ALL this your mother realizes, and when you think her unreasonable she is merely watchful.

Tell your mother all your secrets. She is a perfectly safe confidant; her sympathy is unfailing and her judgment reliable.

The young men who call on you will think twice as much of you if they find you on terms of loving friendliness with your mother. They will see that they must treat you with respect because you are brought up properly and carefully guarded.

Ask your brothers how they feel on this subject. I think you will find that they think more of the girl who is modest and well behaved, the girl who stands close to her mother.

"Marry First and Count the Cost Afterwards," Advises This Expert

Says $1,000 a Year Is Plenty, If Wife and Husband Work Out Life's Problems Together

By Catherine Crawford

MARRIAGE on $1,000 a year is not only possible but proper, according to the views of William Knowles Cooper, general secretary of the Springfield Y. M. C. A., who for five years has conducted a class in the study "Life Problems."

"Marry young, marry the right woman and be happy on $1,000 a year," was the advice Mr. Cooper gave to a conference of Y. M. C. A. secretaries when the question, "Should a man marry on $1,000 a year?" was propounded.

"Yes," he said, "or less, providing, of course, that he marries the right woman.

"If a man postpones marriage because he believes $1,000 a year will not be enough to support two, then when his salary has been increased to $2,000 a year he will make another postponement for the same reason.

"The question is often raised regarding the uncertainty of a man's position, but that seems to me to be easily met.

"The rich may be and often are poor to-morrow. The man of moderate income should have no more feeling of uncertainty than the millionaire.

"If you have health and are industrious, you will come out all right."

The Y. M. C. A. secretaries agreed with Mr. Cooper.

Personal experience has taught many of them that marriage even on a modest income has been the great blessing of their lives.

It was revealed at the conference that the most vital and persistent "life problem," upon which young men seek advice, relates to marriage.

"At what age is it best to marry?"

"What income should a man have before he may rightfully ask a wife to share his fortune?"

Those are the two absorbing questions.

Mr. Cooper is an advocate of the early marriage.

Should Marry Young

"I BELIEVE," he says, "that a man should marry young for the sake of morality. I mean morality in its largest sense.

"It is harmful to wait and marry late in life, when habits and ideas of life are unchangeably formed.

"Many young couples live on $15 a week and bring up a family, and some of them live well, too.

"It is not the salary which counts so much as it is the manner in which it is used.

"As to the uncertainty of a man's position—why, there is uncertainty in everything, and we must leave a great deal to faith. Get married and work out life's problems together. This is the better plan."

How to support a family on a small salary is a matter upon which Mr. Cooper does not assume authority.

"No two problems are alike," he says, wisely. "Each must work out the problem separately. Examples of how it can be done are seen on every hand. Many of them are worth patterning after."

The average man in America to-day does not have an income of $1,000 a year. The average man marries and is happy. Which combination of facts seems to me to give the answer. If marriage on $1,000 or less a year were not very possible, the bureau of vital statistics would not be so busy.

It has always seemed to me that happy marriage is less a question of dollars and cents than of balance and sense.

What Is Needed

GIVEN sane, practical, common sense, good health, loving hearts, congenial nature and willing hands, and I don't think two people should let the matter of income stand in the way of marital happiness.

Lack of money is by no means the chief divorce reason.

Lack of honesty is what causes trouble. Men and women are not honest enough with each other before marriage.

"Ah, darling!" sighs Edwin, "these little hands shall never do a stroke of work. You shall be my queen, and my whole life shall be devoted to making you happy."

And then he mortgages his next week's pay for theatre tickets and eats at a lunch counter in order to send violets or buy a cab.

"It'll be just grand to be married," dreams Angeline, "and not have to work."

And when the wedding knot is tied both wake up disappointed, fretful, reproachful.

Down to Earth

THE time to emerge from the clouds and get down to earth is before marriage, not after.

"I only earn $950 a year," is what Edwin ought to say to his Angeline," but I am honest and earnest, and on the road to advancement. I have no debts and no expensive habits. I love you and am willing to work for you. Do you think you love me enough to try a fair and square partnership under those circumstances?"

And before she says "yes," Angeline should give her calmest thought to the proposition. Then having decided to become Mrs. Edwin she should try to see how very wisely and well $950 can be spent to bring about the greatest good to two people.

Patience and reciprocity must be alternated with love and kisses if the books are to balance at the end of the year.

Better far to rob the courtship of a few illusions than to kill the romance of marriage.

The real kings and queens of finance are not the ultra-rich, but the $1,000 a year pairs who have learned how to get the greatest value for every one of the hundred cents in the great American dollar.

Is marriage possible on $1,000 a year?

Why, bless your heart, one-half the people that you and I and Mr. Cooper rub elbows with contentedly every day of our lives are married and happy on $1,000 or less a year.

If a monetary price is to be set on marriage, then society has reached a much more hopelessly complicated state than I like to think it has. Despite the easy talk of multi-millions, it is still love and not dollars that makes the world go round.

Women Who Smile Have Real Beauty

WHATEVER your position, you must take life in either of two ways. Laugh at it, and it will laugh back; storm at it, and it will as surely hit back in retaliation. It will hit hard too—so hard that, even if it does not cripple at the first blow, you will feel very sore at the second.

It doesn't pay to be sour. The woman with a grievance—how well we all know her!—never seems to get there. People refuse to help such a bore.

Most people have enough worries of their own without listening to other folks'. It's selfish of them, no doubt, but it is very natural. The woman who goes about with a long face is already half-way to getting a refusal for any favor she wishes granted.

And It Pays

Be cheerful. It pays. Every year people spend thousands upon nerve and health remedies, when with a little more cheerfulness they could easily save their pockets.

There is no surer way to get "run down" than by giving way to melancholy. It starts complaints galore, from sluggish circulation, with its attendant horrors, up to continued melancholia.

It is customary to regard low spirits, depression or melancholia as the result of disease. In certain cases this is so. But have you ever thought of the thousands of other cases in which the disease has been brought on by the patient's wilful habit of "giving way," or revelling in "blues"?

Wins Hearts

This may be a strange view to many, but it will well repay a little pondering over.

On the other hand, a cheerful nature makes a happy home and the woman beautiful, for the woman who looks amiable and cheerful is naturally lovely, far more so than a woman with irreproachable sculptural outlines and features so regular that she makes you wish she had some redeeming defect or other.

Perfection of feature was the attraction in ancient Greece; it is not now; it is the cheerful countenance which wins all hearts.

Some women who read this may say that they have so much worry and trouble in their lives that they cannot appear cheerful.

There is only one answer to this: Take one step at a time." Half the misery and worry in the world is because most of us—particularly women—will go out to meet trouble.

Instead of doing this live in the present and turn a smiling face to the future.

BITS OF WISDOM BOILED DOWN

THE neglected "stitch in time," loose hooks and eyes, loose skirt band that permits the skirt to sag in the back—nothing reveals to the observer more readily or accurately than do these little things the woman's true inwardness, her mentality.

* * *

The love of beauty and graceful and pleasing manners are indicative of a kind heart. A carelessly dressed woman is frequently found deficient in her moral sense and indifferent in her treatment of those near to her.

* * *

Men say things that cut deeply without knowing what they are really doing.

* * *

A man who violates confidence never owns up to having done that charged to him.

* * *

Women have a strange way of trying to appear as though they were constantly being imposed upon.

Some men can do nothing so gracefully that no one gives them credit for being useless.

USEFUL HINTS

DRYNESS of skin and general eruptions call for more fruit to be eaten.

There is no agent so effective in aiding the whole structure of the skin to perform its work and to become less sensitive than the careful cleansing at night with hot water and a pure white soap and complexion brush. Rinse in warm water and apply a skin food or a good cold cream.

A lump of camphor placed in a china closet will prevent any silver which may be in it from tarnishing.

"THE BRACEBRIDGE DIAMONDS, Or The Heart of a Woman"

By Gregory Townsend

CHAPTER LIV. (Continued)

BY sheer strength of will (as well as of arms) Monica gained her point. Not, indeed, until Sylvia found herself seated in the old carriage and already half-way down the avenue did she fully realize the fact that the ordeal was over and that she had actually started on her journey.

At Cleveland Mueller was waiting eagerly and impatiently at the station. But there was little time, and Monica was glad of it, for speeches of farewell.

"Good-by, darling, and bon voyage. I hope to see you very shortly again. Don't be surprised if I suddenly appear at Dr. Barry's house before the last of the withered leaves have been whirled off the trees by the wild winds of November."

"Oh, that the time were come," he said to himself, "when there shall be no more partings between us!"

But even as the thought crossed his heart a shiver crept through him, and a shadow of apprehension dropped over the sunny prospect. He turned away abruptly, jumped into his dogcart outside the station and drove homeward, still haunted by that presentiment which it was impossible to allay.

And when he arrived at last at The Hollow and entered his gloomy, desolate house again—yet again he was seized with the urgent impulse to fly from this depressing spot, to put an end to this epoch of his checkered life, and to go back to the purpose which had ruled his life so long.

Then suddenly Sylvia's sweet face seemed to come toward him out of the shadows of the vast hall; the low, clear voice that had enthralled him from the moment he had first met the girl sounded again in his ears.

"No, I cannot give her up. It is too late—too late. Come what may, I shall stand my ground. And who knows? All may turn out happily yet—and the past may be buried and forgotten!"

CHAPTER LV.

An Invitation

THE visit to Florida turned out to be a very fortunate undertaking, so far, at least, as Sylvia Thurston was concerned.

The days glided into weeks and the soothing charm of the Barrys' restful old homestead gradually influenced, almost insensibly, Sylvia's troubled spirit, and the strained, haggard look became less noticeable in her face.

The thoroughly congenial company of Dr. and Mrs. Barry, the refreshing informal, easy going ways of the household, and the glorious, bracing sea air that stimulated the flagging spirit like strong wine, all combined to do their work successfully, if slowly; and when Carl Mueller, true to his promise, made his appearance one afternoon just at the end of November, at Dr. Barry's house, he was intensely relieved when he gazed into Sylvia's face.

"Why, dearest, you are not the same girl to whom I said 'bon voyage' at Cleveland exactly a month ago to-day!" he said. "How delighted your father and mother will be when I take them back this favorable report of you. I have at last persuaded them to go to my town house in New York in January for a month or two and I hope you will join them there, dearest."

Sylvia consented to join her father and mother in accepting her fiance's hospitality.

About the middle of January Dr. Mueller put in an appearance at the house in New York, and spent a week in the company of his bride-to-be. Mueller now decided to learn something definite as to his eager wish that Sylvia should consent to be his wife in June.

They had strolled into Central Park together on this dull January day, and as he touched directly on the subject so near to his heart they came to a sudden pause beneath the gaunt, leafless trees.

The Proposal

"You need a thorough change, dearest, that is the truth of it," he said eagerly, pleadingly. "And I want to take you abroad, you see, for some months, and in order to accomplish this we must first of all be married; there is no other way of arranging matters! I know very well it is hard to ask you to do this so soon after your brother's death and all the sorrow you have gone through. But I wish our marriage to be a perfectly private one, Sylvia, absolutely private, so, perhaps, under these circumstances you will not refuse my request."

"And you wish me to be your wife in June?" Sylvia murmured dreamily, after a pause.

She was not looking at Mueller as she spoke. Her eyes were fixed abstractedly upon the distant prospect of roofs, spires and chimneys gradually melting into one sombre mass beneath the lowering skies.

"Yes, five months from now, darling. To me it will seem a long, dreary time to wait."

"And you remember my words in Florida in November last, Carl, don't you? I told you that afternoon as we stood in the old avenue——"

"I remember every word you said, Sylvia, every word," he broke in, as if with a sudden shrinking from the pain of hearing them again. "But I am satisfied to be second in your love, even if I never can succeed in being first, through all the years of our married life together. I will not ask you to be disloyal to the past, and to the memory of the brother you loved so well. I will ask you nothing, nothing, only one thing, darling—to believe in my love for you and to endeavor to understand it fully. For if you do that you will sooner or later turn your heart to me—you cannot hold out against me!" he cried, with a ring of passion in his voice.

She withdrew her gaze from the distant roofs and spires and fixed her eyes upon his. A long look passed between them, a look that Mueller never forgot.

"I will grant your request," Sylvia said, and there was no tremor in her low, clear, pathetic voice now. "But, remember, if you regret this marriage of ours you have only yourself to blame. I have given you due warning. I have told you no falsehoods. There can, therefore, be no after discoveries—so far as I am concerned, at least."

Ominous

No after discoveries!

The last words fell on his ear with an ominous and startling significance. A sudden chill touched him and a shiver passed through him in every vein.

Again—yet again—came that wild impulse to relinquish this project, to put an end forever to this contemplated marriage, which, as he now viewed it, seemed fated, if not instantly abandoned, to drag them both to destruction.

"There can be no after discoveries, so far as I am concerned, at least."

The words rang again and again in his ears. He was staring into Sylvia's face as though he was unable to answer her, and a chalky pallor was stealing over his features.

"Perhaps the actual truth did not strike you in this light until now," Sylvia said, almost compassionately. "Perhaps on consideration you find that you cannot jeopardize your future happiness by running so serious a risk?"

"There is no risk; there can be no risk, Sylvia," he cried, with a sudden reckless defiance in his face and voice. "Or, if there be one, let it be so! I am prepared for it. It is only a coward that loses heart and falters on the very eve of success."

"Perhaps so, if you can look upon it as 'success,'" she said, still with that pathetic ring in her voice. "Do not blame me for being so frank with you. Better to know the truth now than to find it out when it would be too late for the remedy."

"I am satisfied to risk it," he said, as he beat away the thought that had harassed him only a few moments before.

"Whatever the future may hold in store for me, for both of us, Sylvia, I cannot now draw back."

He lifted her hands to his lips and kissed them and in a strange ominous silence they resumed their walk beneath the leafless trees.

ASKS COURT TO FREE HER FROM CONSUMPTIVE

Mrs. Wolfson's Grounds in Divorce Without Precedent in Massachusetts.

WAS MARRIED SIX MONTHS

On the charge that her husband is afflicted with tuberculosis of the lungs of chronic form, Mrs. Bessie Steinberg Wolfson of No. 70 Fayston street, Roxbury, has sued for a divorce from her husband, William Wolfson, of East Boston.

This is the most unusual grounds for divorce ever made in Massachusetts. Attorneys declare that it is absolutely without precedent, and the case which is entered with the clerk of the Superior Court will be watched with the greatest interest by lawyers when it is called for trial the first of next May.

Left Him at Once.

Mrs. Wolfson, in her bill of complaint, alleges that her husband was, unknown to her, afflicted with chronic consumption when they were married in New York last Labor Day. She declares that almost immediately after they were married she found out that he was suffering from the disease, and that a few days afterward she left him, refusing to live with him.

Attorney A. C. Webber, for the plaintiff, says that while there is no Massachusetts precedent for the case, that the United States Supreme Court has recently held that tuberculosis is a cause for breach of promise to marry.

State a Third Party.

He says that the Supreme Court held that the State is a third party to any marriage and interested in such agreements. The court said:

"The dictates of humanity demand that no human compact shall be upheld that has for one of its principal objects the bringing into the world of helpless, plague-cursed, innocent babes."

Mrs. Wolfson's attorney says: "Since marriage rests purely upon contract, it follows that if a person is induced by fraudulent means to enter into a contract he ought to be relieved from such a contract, especially where the misrepresentation was material to the relationship or status intended by the contract. So the case does not differ in principle from a case of ordinary contract."

ALLEN LINER IN, 5 DAYS LATE BY GALES

Five days overdue, the Alan line steamer Sicilian, Captain Fairfull, reached port this morning from Glasgow. The ship met a succession of gale, and off Halifax, N. S., was forced to lay-to for twenty-four hours. Four hundred and fifty passengers landed at Halifax, and 350 came to Boston.

CLASS ROWING AT HARVARD.

HOBSON PLANS IRELAND'S FREEDOM BY ECONOMICS

Envoy Here Warns Against Bryce's Alleged Mission for American Pact With England.

That the Irish people can build up a system which would make Ireland too heavy an undertaking and too expensive for England is the belief of Bulmer Hobson of Belfast, who is lecturing in this country on the purposes of the Sinn Fein movement.

"Start industry and reorganize agriculture," he says, "and Ireland will be made more prosperous economically and the economic system imposed on Ireland by England will be absolutely smashed."

Mr. Hobson received an enthusiastic reception from an immense audience in Faneuil Hall last night, and later he was entertained at dinner at the Hotel Essex by a number of leaders in the Irish cause.

To Restore Industry.

"The Sinn Fein movement," Mr. Hobson told the Faneuil Hall audience, "is anti-English in everything, and proposes resistance of a passive kind to everything English in Ireland. It is not going to wait for any concessions, but proposes to rehabilitate Irish industries, rejuvenate Irish language and education, restore Irish commerce and levy a tax on British ships, abolish the so-called 'castle boards' and to agitate against enlistment in the army and navy.

"England," Mr. Hobson says, "has used Ireland for centuries for the benefit of its own people. It is driving the Irish people and has been driving them out of Ireland since the days of the famine.

"Ireland needs a protective tariff for its industrial development, but England will not allow it.

"The Irish people are meeting this by insisting on using exclusively Irish manufactures; they are boycotting English goods.

"Tax English Ships."

"Another step would be to impose a harbor tax on English ships to discourage exportation. The banks and railways are under English control, but this power could be upset by starting co-operative banks and finally amalgamating them into one great national bank.

"The English educational system could be wiped out by a boycott and the starting of Gaelic schools all over the island.

"By pulling together, irrespective of creed or locality, the people could displace the English system of finance.

"The Irish people must recognize only one nation, and that is Ireland.

Urges Temperance.

"The young men of Ireland should abstain from the use of intoxicating liquors, not only for the moral effect, but to deprive the British Government of the great revenue from the tax on spirits sold in Ireland."

The Faneuil Hall meeting adopted a set of resolutions in which sympathy with the Sinn Fein movement was expressed. The resolutions warn the Irish people against the international exhibition to be held in Dublin this year, which is described as "a cunningly devised English scheme to destroy the reviving industries of Ireland and keep the country in industrial slavery to England."

Warning Against Bryce.

"We warn the American people," read the resolutions, "that James Bryce is coming to America for the special purpose of effecting an alliance with England that has for its immediate object war with Germany and the retention of England's robber grip on Ireland, India and South Africa."

CHURCHMEN TO BLACK FACES

Live jokes and new topical songs are promised as features of a big burnt cork minstrel show soon after Lent, that will be given by prominent parishioners of the Roman Catholic Church, St. Mary of the Angels, Roxbury.

"Everybody Will Be Happy," written and sung by John Stephen Dooley, a Boston cotton broker, who also plays a black ballet queen; "Just Bugs," by Jack O'Connor, an old Highland ball player; solos and gags of Edward F. Pinkham, a star end man of the old "Tremont Troubadours," and tenor chirps of Will Gutzman will make the show a wonder, their friends say.

Prof. John Coleman of Charlestown is getting the minstrel front, ends and interlocutors ready.

CONSUELO TO BRING SONS TO NEW YORK

LONDON, March 11.—It is now declared that the Duchess of Marlborough and her sons will visit New York soon, and this goes to prove that the influence of her mother, Mrs. Oliver H. Belmont, and of the Vanderbilts has triumphed over that of the Churchills.

When the Duchess and her two children left here for the South of France it was understood that she had definitely abandoned for a year her intention of going to New York. To this purpose the Duke and his mother, Lady Blandford, had strongly objected, for the Duchess insisted that she would take her sons with her. He long protested against their being taken out of English jurisdiction, even to France.

Now the Duchess commands the situation. Although her intimates declare that she will not remain out of England long, the fact that she takes the young lords where she pleases greatly distresses the Churchills and all their connections.

BRYANT RIM CO. IN NEW HANDS

The purchase of a large majority of the stock of the Bryant Steel Wheel & Rim Company of Columbus, Ohio, by representatives of the Diamond Rubber Company, has given the latter control of the wheel and rim concern. The Marsh rim, made by the Bryant Company, has been controlled at all times by the Diamond Rubber Company, and the "Quick Detachable Tires" of the Diamond Company have been made expressly for this quick acting rim, which has won a very favorable position in the field of special rims by its efficiency and simplicity.

The Diamond Rubber Company will continue to furnish the Marsh rim, but now as owners instead of merely selling agents. The Bryant Company has employed upwards of one hundred men in its factory at Columbus, Ohio, and the plant will be continued in operation as heretofore. Deliveries and general facilities in marketing the Marsh rims, it is expected, will be improved by the centring of control and ownership in one company. The rim will continue to be known, at least for the present, as simply the Marsh rim.

THOMAS W. LAWSON

having found it necessary to use two full pages in a Boston newspaper of Saturday, in an attack upon me and the King-Crowther Corporation, I beg to advise the public that I have used six pages in my own newspaper, the "Boston Daily Tribune," this morning, March 11, in a reply in plain United States English to the aforesaid Thomas W. Lawson.

I have ordered that 200,000 copies of the "Boston Daily Tribune" this morning be printed, and the papers are now on sale wherever Boston newspapers are sold. The price is 3 cents per copy, and if all persons who are unable to secure a copy through their regular newsdealers will write to me, I will be glad to send a copy free of charge.

I want everybody to read what I have to say about this man, Thomas W. Lawson. I believe it would advance civilization and the interests of humanity a quarter of a century if every American citizen could read what I have printed in the "Boston Daily Tribune" this morning.

WHOLE WORLD OF SPORTS COVERED FOR THE BOSTON AMERICAN BY ITS CORPS OF EXPERTS

YANNIGANS WILL PLAY THE REGULARS TO-DAY

BY A. H. C. MITCHELL.

Staff Correspondent of the Boston American.

A. H. C. Mitchell,

Baseball Expert for the Boston American.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 11.—Nothing is talked of to-day by the Boston bunch of ball players but the opening of the series between the regulars and the Yannigans, which is booked for 2:15 o'clock this afternoon. The members of the rival teams are making the most extravagant cracks at each other and from the brags and boasts that are going on one would think a championship prize fight was on the tapis.

It all means that the Americans are feeling fine and are simply itching to get into something that approaches a real ball game. The training has gone along so nicely that all hands are on edge. There promises to be more fun than a bunch of monkeys when the umpire, whoever he is, cries "play ball." The umpire's name was hotly discussed all day yesterday, but the arbiter has not been yet selected. The regulars proposed President Taylor, but the Yannigans objected strenuously on the ground that he always gives them the worst of it. The Yannigans have named Yours Truly, but I think I will duck to the tall timbers when the time comes, because things look decidedly warlike at this writing and I do not care to get mixed up with a lot of ball players in training. Manager Stahl has ordered the Hot Springs delegation to pack up and start for Little Rock on Wednesday. They will all have been there long enough, except perhaps Winter and Freeman.

Nearly Everyone in Fine Shape Now.

As far as Freeman is concerned, he is always as hard as nails and there is a suspicion that he didn't need the baths very much. It is suspected that he wanted to see his old room mate, Bill Dinneen. The players who will come from the Springs are: Dinneen, Armbruster, Harris, Winter and Freeman. They ought to be in fine shape, except perhaps Winter, who did not look any too well when we saw him a week ago.

Freddie Parent arrived late Saturday night and spent Sunday looking around the hotel with the other boys. The weather cleared off splendidly and the day grew warmer as it grew older. It looks as though we would have another spell of bright, warm weather. The boys are tickled to death with the progress made in training and spirits are high all around.

Shaw, the Louisville catcher, bids fair to lose a big toe nail. The twig was injured on Friday and grows worse as the days go by. Shaw is something of a wag. Approaching President Taylor this morning, he said:

"Mr. Taylor, I only brought about $2,700 with me from home and since I have been here I have spent $3,000. Could you let me have five or six thousand." The touch was so gracefully made that Mr. Taylor fell for it without a moment's hesitation.

Parent looks surprisingly well. He is light in flesh, but of course will have to go through the soreness and aches and pains that the other ball players have gone through who have been here a week. He has not yet talked with Mr. Taylor on the salary question. The owner of the club will wait for Freddie to begin negotiations.

Grimshaw Joins His Squad.

Myron Grimshaw, the lantern-jawed first baseman, joined the squad late last night, leaving Lou Criger the only missing player. "Grim" says he missed connections at St. Louis, and had to remain in that city over night.

Many of the boys went over to Hot Springs to see the rest of the bunch yesterday. They found all the boys who have been taking the "boiling-out" process in the best of condition, with the possible exception of George Winter, who looks a trifle pale and worried.

While at the Springs the boys from here were entertained by Barney Dreyfuss, the owner of the Pittsburg Club. He figures that his team will be much stronger than last season. He says he will play Leach at third, and Clark, Hallman and Clymer in the outfield.

Barney says he thinks that the Boston Nationals will make a big mistake if they don't accept Clarence Beaumont. The Smoketown magnate considers "Beau" a good player yet, and is of the opinion that he will make an excellent man for the Doveyites.

BURNS WANTS TO MEET TWO MEN SAME NIGHT

MILWAUKEE, March 11.—Tommy Burns, who is here with Jimmy Burns, wants to take on two men in Los Angeles, providing he can get the consent of Jack O'Brien and also Mike Schreck. Tommy has written to Tom McCarey, manager of the Pacific Coast Athletic Club, that he will agree to meet Jim Flynn, the Colorado miner, and Bob Ward, in the same ring the same night.

"I would like to get another bout before my match with O'Brien in May," said Tommy, "but, of course, I will do nothing to violate my agreement with O'Brien, nor in my match with Schreck. However, I will agree to fight the two men the same night if McCarey can arrange it for me."

Asked what he thought of the Jack Johnson-Bill Squires match in Australia, Burns said: "There is no good line to be had on Squires, but he will have to be good to beat Johnson, and I would not be surprised to see the colored man win.

"I would like to have seen Squires come over here and tackle Jeffries, providing he will fight, and if he will not, why I am ready and anxious to meet the Australian."

VETERAN WOOD FAVORS UMPIRE SIGNAL PLAN

"I certainly believe it is due to the patrons of the game that they are handed direct information of the plays and decisions of the umpire just as soon as they come off," said George (Lefty) Wood to a group of baseball enthusiasts in Tom McCarthy's to-day.

"The move in this direction during the championship games in Chicago last Fall has awakened the fans to the importance of going still further in the matter, so that this year not only will the umpires in the principal leagues have their work laid out for them in announcing in a distinctive style the balls and strikes called on the batsmen, but electric boards may be arranged to designate every play made in the games.

"I saw the importance of this when umpiring in the Southern League in 1904, and continued signaling up the balls and strikes in my official capacity the past couple of seasons in the New York State League. Naturally having noted its success with the public I will keep up the practice this year in umpiring the New England League games."

It is very consistent that George Woods be progressive, as for over a decade he has been one of the important figures in baseball history. Born in East Boston, he learned to play the game on the flats over there. Working his way steadily to the front he later entered professional ball, being one of the Detroit team back in the 80s, where he played right field. He was rated with such stars of the diamond as Ed. Hanlon, Thompson, Kelly, Ward, Paul Hines, Anson, Jim O'Rourke, etc.

After Detroit he was with the Philadelphia Nationals for nine years, and ranked among the first ten men in the league in fielding and batting. He was, too, one of the number who made up the All-American team that went abroad in 1888-9. On this trip he traveled over 33,000 miles.

His addition to the staff of umpires of the New England League has all the earmarks of having been a master stroke for that body. A thorough student of the game, quick of eyesight, game as a nebble in making decisions, and a good voice in announcing the balls and strikes called, leads to the opinion among his numerous friends that in a short time he will be under contract in one of the two big leagues.

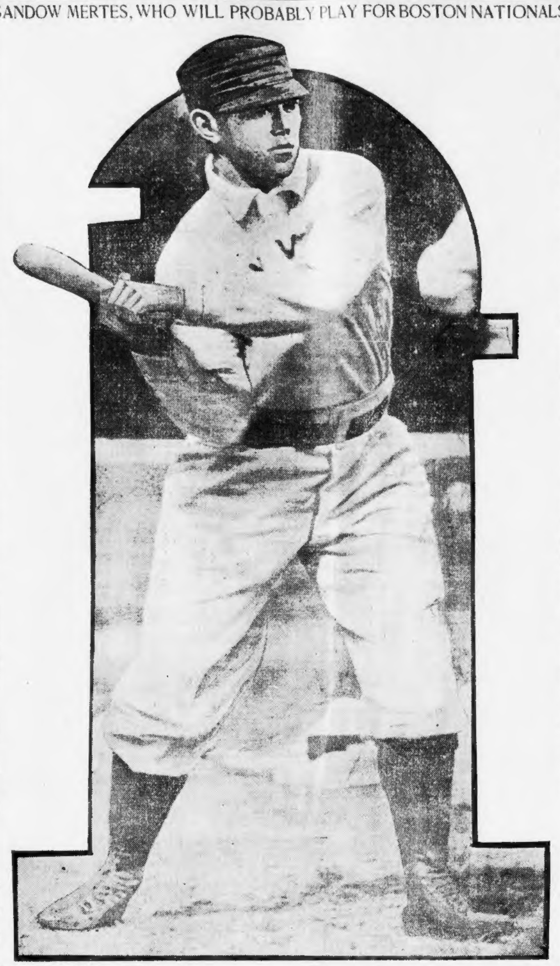

GEORGE (LEFTY) WOOD.

TUFTS AFTER WILLIAMS.

Tufts, having closed its scheduled basket ball games, would like to arrange a game with Williams, which claims the New England college championship. Both teams have defeated Brown and Dartmouth.

SANDOW MERTES, WHO WILL PROBABLY PLAY FOR BOSTON NATIONALS

DAWSON WILL PLAY M'HALE FOR POOL TITLE

John T. McHale (Roxbury Kid), New England pool champion, will defend the title against Thomas Dawson (English Tom) at Bob Carey's billiard academy, No. 364 Washington street on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday evenings of this week.

The articles of agreement call for a match of 600 balls, 200 points to be played each night, for the New England championship. The present champion risks his emblem against the required amount to be deposited by the challenger, and the men will play for the gate receipts, the winner to take all. The winner will also be called to defend the title against all comers for one year.

The match is to be played on a Brunswick Balke-Collender 5x10 championship table with 2 5-16 balls. Harry Manuel will referee and his decisions will be final in all instances. Miah Murray will present the emblem and its equivalent to the winner at the completion of the match. Bob Carey will have charge of the other arrangements and will also officiate as master of ceremonies. Each game will begin at 8 o'clock sharp.

Previous to the opening game to-morrow night, Jerry Callahan, the newsboy champion, will be presented with a beautiful gold watch, suitably inscribed, for making the best showing during the past week against Tom Hueston, the world's champion, last Wednesday night. Jerry pocketed 149 balls against the champion's 150, losing the match by a single ball.

ON THE MAT AT SALEM TONIGHT

Fritz Hansen has trained hard for his bout in Salem to-night. The Worcester Swede, if successful, will go after Wilfred Barrett for a match. George Tuohey, who has been conducting the wrestling matches in Worcester the past few years, thinks that Hansen is the best boy of his weight in the country at the present time. The friends of Hansen believe that he is the master of Tremblay, who was defeated in Manchester by Jim Prokos the other night, and they were willing to put up a good side bet that he could beat him. The injury to Tremblay, however, precludes a match for some time.

ROUSE O'BRIEN IN BEST OF CONDITION FOR BOUT

Two Hub boys battle at the Thornton A. C. Club, just outside of Providence, to-night, in a featherweight contest that promises to be all the candy.

Matty Baldwin and Rouse O'Brien are the lads tied up to settle a little question of science and skill for a distance of fifteen rounds, and there isn't any doubt but that this pair will make the dust fly for the whole journey.

The last time they met in Chelsea, O'Brien, who was not in the best shape, led Matty a merry chase all over the ring, preferring to fight him at long range, and Matty had his tongue hanging out before it was half over. Matty should have been adjudged the winner, but the referee must have had troubled eyesight that night, as he called it a draw.

The ring is a small one at Thornton. O'Brien would not have any chance to avoid Matty to-night and he has no idea of doing so, as he is fit now and will toe the scratch and swap as long as Matty will.

There will be a large delegation go down to Little Rhody to see the mill, as it is a long time since the Hub fans have had a chance to see Baldwin in action and his victory over Tommy Murphy put him in right.

* * *

The Winnisimmet Athletic Club of Chelsea has a most inviting programme for to-morrow night's meeting. Two interesting ten-round bouts and a six-round bout have been advertised. The principals in the ten-round bouts are Belfield Walcott of this city, and Hayward Briggs of Brockton. These husky darkies are two of the best boys their weight in New England. Walcott is one of the most satisfactory boxers that ever appeared in a ring in this city, and Briggs is recognized by Brockton sports as an aggressive fellow.

The finale is between Frank Adams of Newton and that clever Lynn boxer, George Murray. These are two of the leading featherweights in New England and a remarkably fast contest should be in evidence.

Jerry Gaines is training hard for his bout with Bradley and he expects to win easily and quickly this time.

* * *

Mike Donovan, of Rochester, N. Y., and Billy Rhodes, of Kansas, will clash in Portland to-night. Both of these men are exceedingly clever, and both have a knock-out wallop, which either one is apt to call into play to-night.

* * *

It is doubtful if the match between Harry Lewis and Peter Sullivan, carded for Salt Lake to-night, will be pulled off, as there has been some trouble between the former and his manager, Dickerson. Dickerson arranged the match, but Lewis's father declares that he won't let his son fight under his management.

* * *

Joe Gregg, the Indian, has a battle with Jim Morgan at Indianapolis to-night, and it is reported that the boxers are evenly matched and should put up a good bout.

* * *

Bill Papke, the new Western wonder, will clash with Dick Fitzpatrick at Spring Valley, Ill., Friday night. This will be the second meeting of the men, and as Papke won easily before, it is not thought he will have any difficulty scoring another victory this time.

* * *

There will be boxing every night this week except to-night at Philadelphia. To-morrow the Manayunk A. C. will start the ball rolling. On Wednesday Eddie Carter of Philadelphia will meet Tommy Lowe of Washington. At the Broadway A. C., Thursday, Kid Beebe and Tommy O'Keefe will be the participants. On Friday the Spring Garden A. C. will give its weekly bill, and on Saturday Spike Robson, the English boxer, will figure in the main go.

TENNEY'S MEN ALL ON HAND AT WEST BADEN; HUB NATIONALS AT WORK

WEST BADEN, March 11.—Almost a score of the Boston National ball players were out on the field to-day for the first practice of the season. The men didn't do any more strenuous stunts than toss the ball about the field, and light running exercise to limber up the muscles of their body. There wasn't a man on the entire squad who didn't enter into the work with a zest and vim which has not characterized the practice of a Boston National team in years.

President Dovey was on the grounds while his men went through their sprouts, and he was very well pleased with the "front" put up by them.

Have a Scrappy Ball Club.

"I think that we will have a good scrappy ball club," said the Hub magnate to-day. "The men are all enthusiastic, which helps a good deal towards bringing out a winning team. Pat Flaherty certainly looks good to me, and I think he will prove a star addition to the pitching staff this season. With Young and Flaherty we will be the best fortified for good southpaw twirlers of any major league team in the country."

Manager Tenney supervised the work of the Bostons to-day. He made them tryout easy so as not to cripple themselves for the harder practice which will be held during the rest of the week. The players will gradually increase the amount of their work and by the end of the week the men will be working out with the abandon of the championship season.

The Boston National players are all on hand. Brain was the first of the Western contingent to show up. Pfeffer, Needham, Dorner, Brown, Bates and Flaherty, followed close on his heels.

How Players Spent Winter.

Brown has been spending his Winter surveying. Needham has been working for a clothing dealer in Steubenville. Pat Flaherty has been playing basketball on the same team with Honus Wagner at Carnegie, which has kept him in a fine condition.

This morning Ritchie was the first man to show. He has a number of oil wells, and has been occupying the cold weather months tending to them. Boultes and Orndorff, two youngsters from St. Louis, were also early arrivals to-day. Lindaman, who has just been married, and Bridwell were the last to report.

Boutles and Orndorff, the youngsters, look to be the goods, and President Dovey is sure they will make a hit on his team.

LATEST NEWS FROM OTHER TRAINING CAMPS

CUBS WIN FIRST GAME.

NEW ORLEANS, March 11.—In their first game of the season to-day, the Chicago Nationals defeated the New Orleans team by a score of 11 to 8. The majors played ragged ball because of the wet condition of the field, due to a recent severe rain storm. Thirteen men were sent into the game for the visitors, of whom Randall and Osborne, the recruits, proved the stars. Each of these outfielders grabbed off three hits out of five times up. Randall stole two bases and Osborne made a long two-bagger.

WHITE SOX TEAMS PLAY.

CITY OF MEXICO, March 11.—With Ramon Corral, the Vice-President of the Republic of Mexico, among the 1,500 spectators, the "Blue" division of the White Sox defeated the "White" division by a score of 8 to 2.

PIRATES OFF FOR WEST BADEN.

PITTSBURG, March 11.—In one of the most blinding snow storms of the season, players left here for their training camp at West Baden. The only regular who did not accompany the team was the inimitable shortstop of the Pirates, Hans Wagner, who was given permission to remain behind until he completes an important real estate deal. The Pirates will practice at West Baden a week, and then will finish up at Hot Springs.

HOGG IN BEST CONDITION.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 11.—Pitcher Hogg is in the best shape of any member of the Highlanders pitching staff. He has already acquired his normal speed and control in delivering the ball to the batters. Manager Griffiths plans giving the pitchers a hard workout this week, and expects to have at least three of them in condition to twirl exhibition games next week.

GIANTS BEAT LOS ANGELES.

LOS ANGELES, March 11.—Four thousand fans saw the former world's champion Giants defeat the Los Angeles team by a score of 8 to 1 yesterday.

JIMMY WALSH MAY FIGHT OWEN MORAN

Special to the Boston American.

LOS ANGELES, March 11.—Manager Tom McCarey of the Pacific A. C., not content with signing Jack Palmer, the English heavyweight, and Jack (Twin) Sullivan for twenty rounds on the night of March 26, is after another British fighter, Owen Moran, clever and hard hitting little bantam. He has cabled Moran to box twenty rounds with Jimmy Walsh. This match if consummated will be at 116 pounds ringside and will be a simon pure championship event, as it is a well known fact that Frankie Neal can no longer fight at the bantam weight limit.

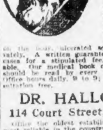

Jimmy Walsh claims the title by reason of this fact, and will defend it against all comers if he succeeds in beating Moran.

NINE FOR FAIR HAVEN.

FAIR HAVEN, Vt., March 11.—Baseball fans have practically decided to support a team here this season and it is probable that the Northern League will be joined. Several college players have already been conditionally engaged.

SPORTING NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

BASEBALL.

The White Sox drew a total attendance of 569,000 at home last season, an average of 7,389 per game.

Captain Frank Chance of the Chicago Cubs led the National League in stolen bases last season, with fifty-seven to his credit, and Chance weighs close to 200 pounds.

"Cy" Seymour has two ambitions that he desires to realize this year. The first is to lead the National League in hitting, and the second to make more home runs on the Polo grounds than ever were made there in one season by an individual player.

"Jimmy" Sheckard is said to have objected good and hard to having his salary treated to an alum bath by President Murphy of the Cubs. "Sheck's" poor work in the world's series is responsible for the shrinkage.

Pitcher "Stony" McGlynn of the St. Louis Nationals has resigned from the York (Pa.) police force and is journeying to the Mound City. "I club 'em in the Winter and get clubbed in the Summer," says McGlynn.

That's a fine score card Treasurer Hugh McBreen has just got out for this season. A big red, white and blue shield, with Captain Stahl's picture in the centre, makes a tasty getup.

Billy Clymer, the ex-big leaguer, who took charge of the Columbus club in the American Association and grabbed the flag last year, was nosing around the outskirts of both meetings on the lookout for trades. Clymer says that he has some good youngsters to offer for a couple of good oldsters.

Christy Mathewson of the Giants, who brought a world's championship to New York, played fullback when he was at Bucknell, and opposing elevens feared his line breaking abilities and punting skill to the same degree then as now the nines have respect for his sizzling speed and his fade-away curves. In Philadelphia Christy once kicked two goals from the field against the University of Pennsylvania at far and difficult angles that would have stumped Eckersall, O'Dea or Herschberger.

Catcher Charles Street of the 1906 Williamsport team has left for the Pacific coast, where he will play in 1907 with the San Francisco nine of the Pacific Coast League. Every effort of Manager Wolverton to retain the player was without avail, as the Western mangement held to the contract which they had. Street came East at the time of the earthquake and played with the "Millionaires" as an outlaw organization. When protection was received he was one of the players drafted over to the original club. In the loss of the catcher Williamsport loses a premier backstop, doubtless the best in the Tri-State League.

BOXING.

Mike (Twin) Sullivan is determined to get Harry Lewis in the ring again. He went to Pueblo to see Lewis fight Perry last Thursday night. When Twin chases a fighter like that he can't get away from him.

John L. Sullivan is still as game a lad as he ever was. His latest and most frequent opponent is Kid Barleycorn, relative of the one who defeated him many years ago. John L. has been fighting the barleycorn family ever since. He also has a feud with the tribe of Rye.

"Put down one bet for me that Mike Mitchell will throw better than any man in the National League," remarked Jack McLean, the Reds' big catcher. "You've read a lot lately about Hans Wagner making a throw that went farther than the record toss of John Hatfield and the alleged heave of Ned Crane at Cincinnati during the days of the Union Association. I'll pick up a few coal bills during the Summer acting as angel for Mike in throwing contests with some of the so-called wonders, including Jimmy Sheckard, Hans Wagner, Sherwood Magee and one or two others who seem to think that all the real throwing strength is settled up in their respective whips."

HARNESS HORSES.

Up to the present date over 2,400 entries have been received to the American Horse Breeder Futurity, valued at $10,000, which will be decided at Readville track in 1909-10. This stake closed March 1, and when returns have been received from California it is expected that the total number of entries will reach 2,500.

The well-known trainer and driver, Frank Sargent of Tilton, N. H., has recently bought the fast bay gelding Mc Co, brother of Homespun, 2:11¼. He wears only quarter boots when at speed, and those who know him best believe he is destined to trot faster than has ever a New Hampshire bred performer in the past.

BASKETBALL

Institute Juniors of Roxbury would like to arrange a game with the Riverside A. C. of East Boston. Martin Waters, No. 109 Cabot street, Roxbury.

The crack East Boston basketball team wants to challenge the East Boston C. L. A. for the championship of East Boston in a series of three games with a side bet and the winner take all. The East Boston team says that they will talk business with the C. L. A. team after they get through with the Twenty-third Street team, one of the strongest organizations.

Waldorf Club of Dorchester challenges any 110-pound team for championship of State. S. S. Hoar, Jr., No. 42 King street, Dorchester, Mass.

Hamilton A. C. wants games with 115-120-pound teams. Martin Lustig, 202 Bowdoin st., Dorchester.

Fighting the Piano Trust

The name "Piano Trust" sounds big, looks powerful and frightens a good many small piano dealers. They wouldn't dare to cut the price on a "Piano Trust" instrument. We have been cutting their prices for months—cutting—slashing—and actually slaughtering their prices, and have been whipping the Big Piano Trust representatives in every N. E. State. We confess that we are making no money doing it, but we are still in the ring and selling almost any make of high grade pianos, new or second-hand, at prices that make the big Piano Trust sick.

Why Not Let the People Rule?

At Least, Let Them Have a Chance to Tell Their Wise Lawmakers What Laws They WANT

Do you believe that men who are elected with money contributed by the trusts and the public service corporations should be allowed to make and administer the laws of the Commonwealth?

YOU DON'T?

Well, many of the members of the Legislature who are now saying what laws shall go upon the statute books WERE elected in exactly that way.

This explains why they don't dare pass a bill allowing the public to express its opinion on public matters by ballot.

Such bills, providing that upon petition of a certain percentage of the voters any question as to legislation shall be placed upon the ballot that the voters may express their opinion, have been introduced in the Legislature by the Independence League and the Public Opinion League.

If one of the bills should become law the citizens could tell their lawmakers what action they want taken in regard to liquor legislation, public ownership of public utilities, THE REVOCATION OF THE B. & A. LEASE, election of United States Senators BY THE PEOPLE and other matters of great moment.

All the public could do under this bill would be to EXPRESS ITS OPINION.

But the corporations DON'T WANT THE PUBLIC'S OPINION.

THEY ARE AFRAID OF IT!

And so the poor, short-sighted time-servers who are carrying out the corporations' wishes at the State House don't dare let one of these bills be enacted into law.

They probably don't dare even let one of them be favorably reported by the committee.

In Oregon the people are allowed to vote directly upon their own laws. In Massachusetts all that the petitioners are asking is a chance for the people to express their opinions as to what the laws should be.

Think of it! They are not asking for a chance to vote directly on their own laws. They are merely asking for a chance to let their own public servants in the Legislature know what they, the voters, think the laws OUGHT TO BE!

But the corporations, WHO CONTRIBUTE TO THE CAMPAIGN FUNDS OF SO MANY OF THE MEMBERS OF THE LEGISLATURE, have placed their claws on the Legislature's wrist and have said:

"Don't let this become law. WE DON'T WANT THE PUBLIC TO BE TELLING US WHAT LAWS TO PASS! Why, that's what WE are here for to pass the laws, OURSELVES!"

In Oregon, if the Legislature fails to enact any law that the people want the people can enact it themselves. In Massachusetts the people can't even tell the Legislature by their ballots what kind of laws they want.

New Projects of General Booth, Christian Colossus

The career of General William Booth, of the Salvation Army, is a typical story of superb modern success. Wholly aside from the character of his achievements, their magnitude alone would compel the world's admiration.

As a man capable of dreaming great dreams and making them living realities, General Booth may well be classed with men like James J. Hill and Cecil Rhodes.

About forty years ago, General Booth, then an obscure Methodist clergyman, was conducting a small mission service in an old wool house in Bethnal Green, on the East Side of London. To-day he directs campaigns in forty-nine countries on the five continents. Under his command are sixteen thousand officers and employes, in charge of seven thousand army corps. His captains and lieutenants are repeating his messages to the world in no less than thirty-one tongues.

When he started in he was not the editor even of a fugitive pamphlet. To-day he is the publisher of fifty-eight magazines and weeklies, issued in twenty-four languages.

General Booth announced when he reached New York this week that within the month he would celebrate on the mid-Pacific his seventy-eighth birthday anniversary. He is still a sturdy crusader, and works ten hours a day even when he travels. There is stimulus in the spectacle of his unconquerable zeal. Every person of middle age in the United States can remember when the Salvation Army suffered ridicule and arrest.

The Army's methods were noisy, but it was playing tambourines and beating drums to arrest the attention of wanderers who had got beyond the orthodox call. To-day, in America alone, the Salvation Army provides three million beds annually for the poor. Throughout the world it has aroused the admiration of great men. Gladstone was a persistent friend. Cecil Rhodes deeded General Booth the title to an immense domain in Rhodesia.

This Christian Colossus has three new projects. His first is to establish in London and New York universities in which the entire curriculum will centre upon problems of vice and misfortune. His second project is to create agricultural colonies in the neighborhood of all great cities and give every capable man who applies five or six acres to cultivate. His third program is to make of his vast African holdings a Mecca for men who have grown discouraged in the centres of civilization.

Although picturesque, General Booth has not been a visionary. He has matured his undertakings with practical genius. It is possible that he is creating a new opportunity for philanthropy to serve the world.

Perkins Gave It Back

By James J. Montague

A THRILL of horror shakes the frame
Of scandalized John D.
While Rogers hangs his head in shame
To think such things could be;
Morgan wears a fearful frown
And Ryan's looking black
Since it's been bruited up and down
That Perkins gave it back.

THE high and sacred precedent
That governs billionaires
Has been by this astounding gent
Most rudely hurled downstairs
Instead of calling in his friends
And giving them a whack
To serve his own prudential ends,
Why, Perkins gave it back.

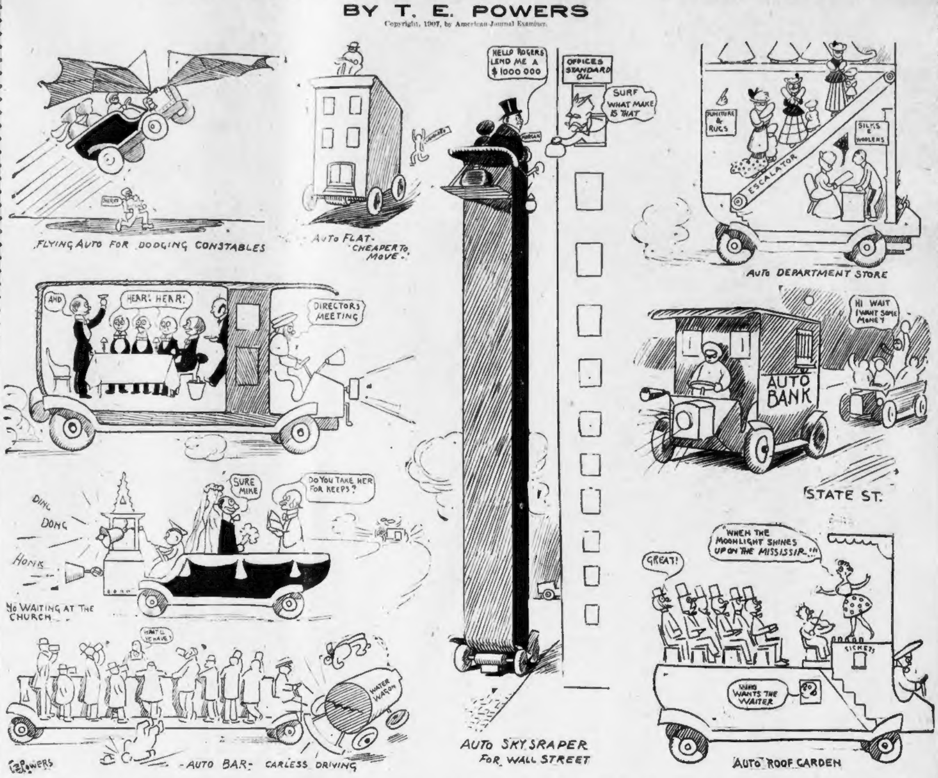

WHAT of the rules of etiquette
Applied to things like these,
Since Captain Kidd his banner set
Upon the bloody seas?
Here was a man who had the pelf
All salted in his sack,
Where none could touch it but himself,
And yet he gave it back.

THIS dark and melancholy page
In Wall Street history
Will be the wonder of this age—
A sombre mystery,
And rich men's children shall be told
That one wild maniac,
Who'd gathered other people's gold,
Ran mad, and gave it back.

THE HALL-ROOM BOYS

THEY THOUGHT THEY COULD MAKE THEIR BLUFF GOOD

Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Be Proud of Your Work, Whatever It May Be; Do Whatever Is Before You with Might and Main

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

EVERY toiler on earth should feel himself or herself an important part of the world's machinery.

If you are a laundress or an errand boy, a cash girl or a scullion maid, a clerk, a seamstress, a cook or a man of all work, respect your toil and yourself.

The world needs you and your work, and you need the work and the world's respect and patronage. Once you fill your mind with this thought everything will seem easier and less disagreeable. Make up your mind to be prompt, to be thorough, to be honest, to remember and to be agreeable, and as sure as you live five years you will find yourself climbing up the ladder of progress and success.

If you are a seamstress on small pay you probably feel discouraged as you see the success of some fashionable dressmaker. You wonder why she has so much—you so little.

Don't Slight Your Task

BUT if you allow yourself to slight your work—to dawdle over your work—to work "pig eye" buttonholes and make uneven seams—to come late and go early—you will never advance in your trade.

If you are one of the best, most skilful and most agreeable seamstresses to be found you will advance and rise and succeed. The advance may be slow, but all growth is slow.

If you deliver parcels and are prompt, ready and bright—before long you will find better paying work.

If you are an outdoor boy and take care of the tools you use and do not have to be told the same duties over and over—you will make your way in life.

Every young man who is starting out in a self-supporting career is hoping to become a successful man—to be advanced—and have his wages or his salary increased as the first step onward.

When he hears of the progress some other boy is making he wonders why good luck does not fail to his lot and meditates gloomily upon the partiality of fortune.

To Win Promotion

IT might be wise for all such boys to think a bit on what qualities are most likely to insure promotion or to delay it.

The lad who is sent out with letters to post and requested to buy postals and stamps and stamped newspaper wrappers and to get the afternoon paper at the corner stand as he returns, and comes back without the postals or the paper is not hastening the day of his promotion.

Of course he is "sorry he forgot" and he is quite willing to go back and rectify his error. But he does not realize that in going back he is using his employer's time, not his own, and trying his patience.

He has been engaged to run errands—he is only a boy, of course, and boys are not expected to have the brains of men. Yet the boy is the man in miniature—and "as the twig is inclined so the tree is bent."

That is the way his employer reasons—and when he finds an office boy continually forgetting one or two of several errands he may excuse the negligence, but he does not advance the wage or promote to a higher position speedily.

Another lad with no better outlook gets pushed up and on merely because he remembered the things he was asked to do.

He that is faithful in little things shall be made ruler of many things.

The young man in a more important position may judge of his future prospects by the same rule.

Don't Trust to Luck

OLDER men are watching his methods, and if they are slipshod and erratic and spasmodic he need not count on h's smartness, his luck or his "nerve" to carry him forward with any great velocity—or upward with any security.

When he finds duller and less gifted companions advanced over him he need not blame destiny, but look to his own short-sightedness as the cause.

The stenographer who uses a wornout ribbon on her machine and misspells and mispunctuates wonders why she does not get on as well as other girls who started even with her, and she thinks the world very unjust and decides the lot of a poor girl is a sad one.

It does not occur to her that poor work can be at the bottom of her failure. That some worthy workers are not appreciated properly and that some careless employes and unskilled workmen and women do get on by hook or crook in the world we know; but that the bulk of earth's failures result from carelessness, incompetency and forgetfulness of the tasks given them to do I believe a careful investigation would prove.

Be Worthy of Success

ONE thing is certain—the boy or girl who neglects a task or continually "forgets" is taking nine chances out of ten of ending as an ignominious failure; and the one who makes a point of remembering and being faithful in small matters is at least building character for his own enjoyment and satisfaction, and there is every good reason to believe that the structure so built will be recognized by the world and by Dame Fortune eventually.

To be worth while is half the happiness of existence.

I may not reach the height I seek,
My untried strength may fail me,
And half way up the mountain peak
Rude tempests may assail me,
But though that height I never gain,
Herein lies comfort for my pain,
I will be worthy of it.

I would rather be worthy of a thing I did not possess than to possess a thing I was not worthy of. But I do not believe it is possible to fail of achievement that which we make ourselves worthy of doing unless death interferes and transplants us to a higher plane of action.
